Western Electric Walkout Set for Nov. 9; Exchanges Will Be Picketed

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A strike of 17,000 Western Electric workers in the District and 43 States was called for November 9 yesterday by the CIO Communications Workers of America.

The walkout, authorized after year-long negotiations over wages, is expected by CWA to tie up the work activities of 300,000 other Bell Telephone System workers across the country, since the Western Electric subsidiary employes plan to picket the telephone exchanges and buildings in every sizable community.

Locally, the walkout would affect directly 180 Western Electric equipment installers, and 237 Western Electric salesmen, warehousemen, and equipment repairmen.

Union officials declared there was no doubt that the 6200 CWA members employed at the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and around 250 attached to the Long Lines Division of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. here would respect the picket lines.

The strike date, 6 a. m. Thursday, November 9, was announced late yesterday by Joseph A. Beirne, CWA president.

In New York City, Federal Mediator Walter A. Maggiolo said he would meet with Western Electric and union representatives Wednesday. In the meantime, he added, he may talk to both parties separately. Maggiolo stepped into the dispute October 17 after negotiations that began September 11 bogged down.

According to the union, Western Electric, which is the manufacturing subsidiary of the Bell System, has refused to come up with what the union describes as a "substantial" increase in pay. The union figures average hourly earnings of the Western Electric workers at $1.50 an hour.

Directly involved in the walkout are 10,000 Western Electric installation workers, 6000 Western Electric distribution employes, and 685 manufacturing employes at the Western Electric plant in Haverhill, Mass.

According to Beirne, the installation workers have been offered an average increase of 11½ cents an hour "poorly distributed throughout the various wage levels"; the distribution workers, 10 cents an hour; the Haverhill plant employes 8 cents an hour. The Western Electric negotiators are seeking an 18-month contract, the union says.

Ten thousand Western Electric workers, including 250 here, struck for more than a week last spring to win a wage boost. Western Electric workers threatened to extend the strike to all CWA employes of the Bell System by picketing telephone exchanges. The strike was called off when bargaining was resumed.

Merchants to Aid Hallowe'en Imps

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 27 (AP).—Kids won't have to paint windows and run this Hallowe'en. They'll wield brushes with the blessing of Annapolis store owners—and for prizes, yet.

The Chamber of Commerce hopefully worked up the scheme. Annapolis High School students will splash paint in self-chosen designs over the windows of 100 stores this Saturday.

The art will not be disturbed until next week. The chamber hopes that will take care of Hallowe'en painting.

Union's Slaps At Orchestra Involve Navy

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

A conflict between music and trade unionism threatens the debut of the Arlington Civic Symphony Orchestra under its newly appointed conductor, Bernard Rosenthal.

As the 70-piece orchestra prepares for its first concert for adults Thursday, November 9, the question has arisen whether its director, a chief musician with the Navy, is entitled to the job under the law.

Involved in the controversy are the Navy Department, Local 161 of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL), members of the orchestra, and the Arlington Civic Symphony Orchestra Association.

The musicians' union has taken the position that Rosenthal's participation as conductor is a violation of the law that says members of the armed services must not compete with private citizens.

Mafia Leader, Aid to Luciano Taken in Raids

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP).—Twenty-five suspects grabbed from a Jamaica racetrack crowd were haled before an assembly line court today in the city's round-the-clock hoodlum roundup.

Forty detectives combed the clubhouse and grandstand for touts and other shady characters during yesterday's races while all exits of the track were guarded.

The bag included an alleged one-time muscle man for the deported vice lord, Charles (Lucky) Luciano.

The 25 men were held in cells overnight on vagrancy counts. The same charge has been lodged against almost all those held in the city-wide drive, now in its third day.

Roving squads of detectives had brought in a total of 388 with arrests continuing today. Dozens of others, taken in as suspects, have been released after questioning.

The roundup—biggest here in 20 years—was ordered by acting Mayor Vincent R. Impelliterri. He said he had received "alarming reports" of possible campaign and election day intimidation by hoodlums.

Impelliterri, a Democrat, is running for mayor as an independent in a four-man field, including the regular Democratic candidate backed by Tammany Hall.

A prize catch in the police net was a man identified by authorities as a leader of the Mafia, national underworld syndicate run by former Sicilian gangsters. He is Anthony Ricci, alias Anthony Gobel, 57, with an arrest record for larceny and assault.

Ricci is free in $1000 bail for a hearing November 9 on a vagrancy charge. He told police he owns a luncheonette.

Meanwhile, two present or former policemen were indicted for perjury today, the first to be charged in connection with a purported million-dollar-a-year police graft payoff by Brooklyn gamblers.

A rackets-probing Brooklyn grand jury, whose inquiry has resulted in wholesale shakeups in the New York City police department, handed up the sealed indictments to Kings County Judge Samuel Leibowitz.

'Atom Vote' Called Boon To McMahon

Nutmeg Democrats Are Seeking Support Of 'Bread and Butter' Electorate, However

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 27.—The "atom vote," a new and highly fissionable quantity in politics, may help shatter an off-year Democratic election jinx in this State.

At least one of Connecticut's two Democratic Senators, Brien McMahon, is likely to win on that issue in a completely out-of-this-world campaign.

But to really banish that bogey of off-year defeats and collect double stakes in the Senate and Governor's races, Democrats are prayerfully banking on their tried-and-true standby: "The Bread-and-Butter Vote."

Gov. Chester A. Bowles, former OPA administrator and the most controversial figure in this advertisers' holiday, is appealing to the have-nots in the lower 40 percent of the income scale.

The governorhip, at least one of the Senate seats and most of the House contests will turn on whether Connecticut's fickle voters like Bowles and his "Little Fair Deal" enough to come out on election day and say so.

Despite the exalted atom and the lowly bread crust, Bowles himself is the central issue.

Bowles, Local Candidate

If Bowles wins, Freshman Senator William Benton, his former partner in the advertising business, will almost certainly ride in with him. McMahon appears out in front of both.

It all hinges on whether outwardly apathetic Connecticut is sufficiently interested to vote about 800,000 strong on November 7. Republicans won comfortably in 1946, when only 690,000 voted. Bowles nosed in when Truman lost this State two years ago. The turnout then was 880,000.

The atom vote? It must pack an awful wallop because Republicans and Democrats agree that McMahon, chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, will run ahead of his ticket. There all prophecies on the outcome in this State start and end.

Conducting a solo campaign, McMahon is stressing use of the atom as a great moral force for peace, a field in which he pioneered.

President Truman's appeal to the United Nations General Assembly to push for real disarmament and international control of atomic energy is down the line of McMahon's atom crusade.

Schoolboy Bumps Head on Desk, Dies

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP).—Gary Fritter, 7, dropped a crayon in school Tuesday. He leaned over to get it and bumped his head on the desk when he straightened up. He died of the injury yesterday.

Miss Edna Mae Trontman, Gary's teacher, said he became unconscious a moment after the bump. At the hospital, doctors found evidence of a brain injury.

Chest Meets 36 Pct. of Goal With $1.5 Million Collected

Stretching for the half-way mark by next Tuesday's general report meeting, area Community Chest bookings yesterday reached 36 percent of a $4,250,000 quota.

The amount collected or pledged as the month-long drive ended its second week is $1,557,350.72.

The three largest campaign units at luncheon meetings in the Washington and Willard Hotels yesterday made the following reports:

Government — $865,274.34 collected, or 54.42 percent of $1,682,700 quota.

Business Employes I — $517,925.10 collected, or 31.19 percent of $1,658,800 quota.

Business Employes II — $51,853.65 collected, or 21.32 percent of $243,200 quotas.

Speaking before the Government unit meeting in the Washington Hotel, the Rev. R. Edward Dowdy, associate minister of the First Baptist Church here, called the Community Chest a "miracle of American life."

"Where in the world can you find community life as it is in America, where people of so many backgrounds can share their common concern for people in need."

At a dinner of one of the 105 agencies supported through Red Feather campaign money, he explained, he sat "across from the wife of a justice of the Supreme Court, near a worker from the Jewish Community Center, alongside of me was a Negro YMCA secretary, a Methodist steward at the end of the table, and there I sat, a Baptist preacher, as a Catholic sister poured coffee for us."

Harold E. Hegstrom, superintendent of the National Training School for Boys, addressed the Business II meeting in the Willard Hotel.

Chinese Reds Battle Allies In No. Korea

40,000 Reported Across Frontier; Yanks, British Meet Fierce Resistance

SEOUL (Saturday), Oct. 27 (AP).—Bitter fighting raged today in northwest Korea where unconfirmed reports persisted that Chinese in North Korean Red uniforms had joined the battle.

A United States First Army Corps spokesman said that the bulk of a South Korean regiment which had been surrounded near Onjong broke out of the trap. The South Koreans were reported to have abandoned all their equipment.

The regiment had been encircled by three enemy regiments. Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert said the Reds actually succeeded in capturing Onjong, about 55 miles southeast of the Manchurian border.

He also reported that the South Koreans captured a Chinese prisoner who said he was from a regiment made up of three Chinese battalions.

About 15 miles southwest of Onjong, the South Korean First Division, which had to yield ground Thursday at Unsan, advanced nearly 3 miles north and west during the past 24 hours, the First Corps spokesman said. But Red resistance continued heavy.

British Brigade Halted

Still farther south, the British Commonwealth Twenty-seventh Brigade was halted near Kasan by well dug-in Reds. The brigade was unable to advance despite a supporting air strike which knocked out 10 Red tanks and two self-propelled guns.

The South Koreans who had to fight out of a trap near Onjong were of the Sixth Division's Second Regiment. Another regiment of the Sixth had pushed all the way to the Manchurian border at Chosan Thursday night but had to pull back Friday when its supply route was cut.

South Korean sources said flatly that Chinese Communist troops, estimated variously at from 30,000 to 60,000, had bolstered the Korean Red lines as United Nations forces slogged closer to the Manchurian border.

A United States Eighth Army spokesman in Seoul said the South Korean (ROK) First Division had beaten back an attack by a Communist force composed of "Chinese and North Korean elements" 50 miles south of the border near Unsan.

Overt Status a Question

Whether the Chinese had entered the fight in overt, organized fashion was still to be determined.

At least some Chinese were fighting against the Allied advance. An American adviser with the South Korean First Division said 62 dead Chinese were counted on a battlefield near Unsan in

Doctors Told To Expect Military Duty

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The medical director of Selective Service yesterday told health officers assembled here that virtually all doctors now registered under the draft will serve in the armed forces.

"Every one" of the 13,941 physicians who were registered in the "doctor draft" of October 16 will serve in the armed services "if the military policy of the Government of the United States continues, as we understand it will," said Col. R. H. Eanes.

Later, Colonel Eanes qualified his "everyone" to exclude those who may be exempted by the draft law provisions itself, such as those who weren't required to register but did so because they were uncertain of their status, and others who failed to pass military physical or mental standards. A few others, he added, may be deferred on "hardship" grounds or "community needs."

The October 16 registration of physicians was only for those who were deferred during World War II for training, either at their own or the Government's expense, and who eventually saw less than 21 months' service. About 300 of the nearly 14,000 doctors involved were registered here.

Colonel Eanes' talk, before a closing session of the forty-ninth annual conference of State and Territorial Health Officers, was followed by a further warning that

Chinese Reds May Be Fighting In No. Korea to Pay Old Debt

By The Associated Press

Reports that Chinese Communist troops are fighting in Korea grew and gained substance yesterday. High American officers at first discounted them, then expressed skepticism, now are investigating closely. One conceded the reports were entitled to "some credibility." Prisoners who said they were Chinese have estimated 30,000 to 60,000 Chinese Red soldiers were fighting beside the Korean Reds. Their stories add up remarkably well.

Simultaneously, the North Korean defense has suddenly stiffened.

Has Red China at long last made good her repeated threats to take a hand in the Korean war? If so, to what extent? And if so, why did she not go in earlier?

These could be the hottest questions of the four-months-old war. Their answers, perhaps illogical to the Occidental mind, could make sense to Communist and Chinese ways of thinking.

There are two possible keys to the puzzle.

One goes back to 1947, when the Chinese Nationalists won resounding victories over the Chinese Communists in Manchuria.

The shattered Communists all but vanished from the news. The next year, they reappeared, well armed and well fed and conquered Manchuria from the hosts of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Vague reports at the time, which

Charitable Units To Get Pension From Rep. Rich

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 27 (AP).—United States Representative Robert F. Rich (R., Pa.), known for years for his cry "Where is the money coming from?" announced today he will give away his Federal pension on his retirement from Congress this year.

Rich, who for years has raised the money question in Congress when appropriations were up for a vote, said he would collect the pension but would distribute it among charitable, character-building and religious organizations, principlly in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Congressional District.

"I can spend the money more wisely than that crowd in Washington is doing," Rich said.

Rich said he would not know the amount of the yearly pension until his retirement.

India Warning To Peiping on Tibet Reported

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 27 (U.P.).—India has served notice on the Chinese Communists that it will stop backing them for United Nations membership if reports of a Tibet invasion are confirmed, informed sources revealed today.

It was learned that Indian representatives here have received instructions to hold up their months-old effort to oust the Nationalists in favor of the Communists until the Tibet situation is clarified.

Word of India's warning to Peiping stirred speculation here that the whole trend toward giving China's U. N. seat to the Communist people's republic may halt in its tracks.

(The Associated Press reported that Sir Benegal N. Rau, India's chief U. N. delegate, said he knew of no change of Indian policy regarding Red China as a result of the reported invasion of Tibet and had received no new instructions.)

India has been a prime mover in the slow-but-steadily-building campaign to gain United Nations entry for Mao Tse-tung's regime. Representatives from the Communist regime are due here by November 15 to take part in Security Council debate on their charge the United States committed aggression in dispatching the Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa.

The decision to invite the Chinese Communists to the debate—without the right to vote—was considered the opening wedge in

'Political Hysteria' Charged

135 Launch Injunction Suit To Upset Anti-Subversive Act

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

An injunction suit signed by 135 persons was filed yesterday in District Court asking that the Internal Security Act of 1950 be declared unconstitutional.

Declaring that the anti-subversives law was the product of "political hysteria," the suit alleges that the McCarran Act violates Article One and the First, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Thirteenth amendments to the Constitution.

The suit calls for empanelling a three-judge court to determine the measure's constitutionality, and for injunctions to prevent Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and the Subversive Activities Control Board from enforcing the law.

Attorneys in the case said that only a small number of the plaintiffs are Communist Party members, and that some of those signing the suit would not probably ever be deemed subversives.

The plaintiffs, who come from 32 States include:

Prof. Louise Pettibone Smith of Wellesley College, William L. Patterson, executive secretary of the Civil Rights Congress; Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, national committeewoman of the Communist Party; Fred W. Stover, president of the Iowa Farmers' Union, and Arthur Schutzer, executive secretary of the American Labor Party of New York.

The suit is similar to one that 107 of the plaintiffs tried to file in the court earler this week. It was rejected for technical reasons.

The new petition quotes President Truman's veto message saying that the McCarran law "would give Government officials vast powers to harass all of our citizens in the exercise of their right to free speech."

Terming the anti-subversives law "legal framework for a police state," the suit states that it violates the Charter of the United Nations.

The petition also includes the following language:

"The act . . . engendered a miasma of fear, to terrorize activity and thought throughout the country."

The lawyers who filed the suit said that they would press for an early hearing in the case. They said that they would return within a few days to file formal motions for a preliminary injunction and for the three-judge constitutional court.

German Rocket Expert Vanishes From Home

Truman to Make Political Talk In St. Louis on November 4th

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman will make a major campaign speech in St. Louis just before the 1950 election, the White House announced last night.

It will be his only outright political speech of the campaign. He will deliver it at a Democratic rally in St. Louis' Kiel Auditorium Saturday night, November 4, at 9 o'clock central standard time (10 p. m., Washington time).

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman's speech would be national in scope and would "summarize and restate the issues of the campaign."

The announcement was made after William M. Boyle, jr., chairman of the Democratic National Committee, had spent several hours at the White House. Boyle has been urging Mr. Truman for some time to speak out as leader of the party. Back in the spring, he had been hoping that Mr. Truman would make a whistle-stop tour, but the war in Korea made this impossible.

Mr. Truman will stop off in St. Louis on the way to his home in Independence, Mo., to vote. He will spend Saturday night in the Jefferson Hotel there and next day will fly to Kansas City. He will spend Sunday night and Monday night in the Hotel Muehlebach, since the Truman home in Independence is temporarily closed.

On Monday afternoon at 2, the President will dedicate a Liberty Bell given to the people of Independence by the people of Annecy, France. The next day, after voting early, he will fly back to Washington.

Press Secretary Ross told reporters that Thomas C. Hennings, jr., Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, had been notified that Mr. Truman would speak in St. Louis and added that he was expected to attend the rally. Hennings is out to capture the seat of the Republican incumbent, Sen. Forrest Donnell.

Ross said that Mr. Truman's speech would be broadcast by the four major networks, and explained that the time would be paid for by the Democratic National Committee.

Pact Chiefs Here to Plan For Defense Of Europe

Manner of Using German Troops Provides an Issue For Talks Today

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Ministers of the Western World meet here today to seek agreement on quickly forming a unified Western European armed force—and all indications were that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower would head it.

"Ike," it appeared, was the choice both of the 11 other nations of North Atlantic Pact and American military officials. President Truman, of course, must make the selection and appointment if the Defense Ministers Conference asks, as expected, that an American be named.

The five-star general, now president of Columbia University, arrived here last night and is due to see the President and Pentagon officials today. Talking with reporters in Charleston, W. Va., yesterday, Eisenhower said that "as a soldier" he considered it his duty to accept the post if offered.

But if there was general agreement on the choice of a supreme commander of the Western European force, a conference table fight seemed certain over the question of inclusion of German troops in the western army.

Moch Brings Pleven Plan

France's Defense Minister Jules Moch arrived yesterday announcing that he had come to get the Pleven plan adopted and for no other purpose. That plan, adopted by the Fench cabinet this week, calls for rearming Germans and their complete integration in small units into the combined army only after something like a Western European Federation is achieved.

Moch was quoted in New York as saying that while he could consider modifications of the Pleven plan in detail, he was under instructions not to yield in principle.

The meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense committee—the defense ministers—opening here today is under instruction from the NATO Council—the foreign ministers—to consider the organization of the Western European armed force and the inclusion of German forces in it.

Before them will be the recommendations of the NATO military committee—the professional military chiefs whose meeting ended Thursday—dealing with short-range and long-range plans for contributions of forces to the unified Army, Navy and Air Force, the establishment of a Supreme Commander and international staff and other military problems.

Little or no dispute is expected over acceptance of these recommendations, but the German rearmament problem—not dealt with by the generals—promises trouble.

The Pleven plan Moch says he will press goes far beyond the scope of the defense ministers meeting. They would have to

Life Span Increase Cited in Ceremony At Williamsburg

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Oct. 27 (AP).—An increased life span of the average man is "the real measure" of the progress made since Colonial times, the director of the National Heart Institute said here today.

"Since the time of the first flowering of Williamsburg, the average length of life has nearly doubled. It is this very increased length of life that is setting new horizons for the tomorrow of public health," said Dr. C. J. Van Slyke.

The institute official spoke at a luncheon marking the opening of the Pasteur-Galt apothecary shop. The ceremonies heralded the 1950 observance of National Pharmacy Week.

The authentically reestablshed Colonial shop was opened officially when Mrs. V. Lee Kirby, of Williamsburg, a direct descendant of Dr. John Minson Galt who operated the shop in the 1700s, hung out Galt's doctor's certificate.

No NPA Ban Planned On Projects Started

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The National Production Authority yesterday voiced the intent—although no promise—not to stop any commercial building project in the future once it has been started.

The prospect that NPA might order a halt in building a structure when it was only partially completed had been raised on Thursday. In issuing his ruling forbidding the future construction of all entertainment and amusement spots, NPA Administrator William H. Harrison warned, in passing, that in the future he might forbid other commercial construction.

Protest Voiced

This bombshell at once provoked an anguished cry from H. E. Foreman, managing director of the Associated General Contractors. In a telegram to NPA, Foreman implied that the warning might have the effect of actually stopping further commercial construction; no builder would dare commence a project with the threat that, half way through, the Government would step in and order work halted.

Yesterday Harrison wrote Foreman that if, at some future date, he had to limit commercial building, "it will be our intent to avoid interruption of projects already underway."

But Harrison added immediately, "We cannot now give assurance that circumstances in the future will permit adherence to this policy."

Ban's Effect Small

Thursday's order, with its sweeping ban on the future building of any structure to be used for amusement, entertainment or recreation, will, of course, put an end to new movie theaters, school athletic stadiums, bowling alleys, dance halls and the like.

But its effect on the total volume of construction will not be too large, it appeared. The F. W. Dodge Corp., construction research organization, reported that social and recreational building amounted to about 1.8 percent of total construction, not even as large as construction for religious facilities.

In another move yesterday, Harrison provided that aluminum producers need not accept military priority orders in any one month in excess of 25 percent of their total monthly production.

The producers were also required to accept defense orders from independent fabricators up to 6½ percent of their monthly output—an assurance that the "little fellows" will get some raw materials for their defense work.

Greater FAO Aid Sought From Nations

Uncle Sam went to the aid of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization yesterday.

Undersecretary of Agriculture Clarence J. McCormick, chairman of the American delegation to the FAO Council, proposed that the member nations put up more money for FAO.

McCormick, in his maiden speech to FAO, complained that "I have detected a note of pessimism in the last two days as we have discussed the many perplexing administrative problems facing the organization."

The American then reviewed the report that Director General Norris E. Dodd of FAO made earlier this week, that FAO is about out of funds and that most of its staff members have refused to go to Rome when FAO moves in January.

There is "a great enthusiasm for FAO coming out of the grass roots of the United States," McCormick said. "The national farm organizations have long given their wholehearted support. The same is true of our consumer organizations of forestry and fisheries groups. Our labor organizations are expressing their interest in FAO's success."

McCormick then recommended that the "Director General be instructed to plan for an extended regular program in 1952 and 1953, and that the budget be supported by member governments in substantially the same proportion as at present."

The American contribution to FAO is 27.1 percent of the present annual budget of five million dollars. The other 72.9 percent is paid by the remaining 62 member nations.

The shipment was held up for nearly seven hours while the check was made on orders of the Commerce Department at Washington. The 6000-ton vessel itself was not searched.

Boards to Classify Doctors

Local draft boards will meet Monday and Tuesday to classify 160 of the men who registered recently under the special doctor draft law.

The physicians, dentists and veterinarians will learn about their classifications a few days later. Those who show up in Class 1-A can expect a quick call into the armed forces.

The 160 represent about two-thirds of the men who registered. They are in the Special Draft Category 1—that is, they were deferred during World War II so they could complete their medical training, then saw less than 90 days' service in uniform.

The District Medical Advisory Committee, headed by Dr. G. Victor Simpson, will hold sessions over the weekend to advise the boards which of the draft-liable doctors should be deferred in the interests of the community's welfare. The local boards, however, must make the decisions on deferment.

D. C. Raid Warning Supervisor Named

Harry L. Burbridge yesterday was designated supervisor of the District's ground observer post—part of a Nation-wide Air Force warning net—and started preparing for a test run next weekend.

Burbridge, a pilot and Commerce Department employe, who lives at 4800 E. Capitol st., said he had named two chief observers and hoped shortly to round up a crew of 20 volunteer spotters.

Their job will be to supplement radar nets by manning a post during air raid alerts, and reporting approaching planes to a filter center near Baltimore. Thomas J. Hayes, 3d., Assistant District Engineer Commissioner, said the Air Force has set up 6200 such posts over the country.

The Air Force plans a test along the East Coast November 4 and 5, he said.

Hayes explained that Burbridge's post, only one here, will be on high ground in Southeast Washington, probably near Marshall Heights.

Burbridge was designated by Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, to replace Walter Murphy whose work prevented him from serving, Hayes said. The District Commissioners must approve the selection. Burbridge said his two chief observers will be Bernard Chapman, 824 48th st. ne., and Lorenzo Miller, 4801 E. Capitol st.

GI Paralyzed Below Waist In Korea War

Pfc. Polito

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Polito said yesterday that no official word had been received, but the letter from their son told of being wounded on September 28.

Writing from a hospital ship, the USS Repose, 20-year-old Polito disclosed he had been operated on, and that he expected to be sent to Japan and then back to the Unied States, according o his parents.

A machine gunner with the Second Division, Pfc. Polito was shipped to Korea about August 1, his mother said.

Born in Washington, he attended Paul Junior High School, enlisting in the Army in 1948. About three weeks after arriving in Korea he wrote of his division being pushed back 3 miles on the Nangtong River.

"Two squads from my platoon were captured and shot in cold blood—two guys escaped and told the story. They came over the mountains yelling "Banzi" and beating on pans and the scared the hell out of me."

A brother, Anthony, 26, is a World War II veteran. They have four sisters.

Marines Properly Trained, Corps Says

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Marine Corps said yesterday it had found no case of a Marine being sent into battle without adequate training and found itself challenged at once.

Marine Brig. Gen. J. C. McQueen, direct of the corps' public information, said earlier complaints of inadequate reservist training for the Korean war had been investigated by a committee of which he was a member. The committee, he said, found that reservists were asked before being sent overseas whether they felt they had received proper training for combat.

"We have found no case," he declared, "where a reservist who felt he had not received adequate training was sent into combat."

An analysis of casualty figures, he added, indicated that regular Marines had suffered proportionately higher casualties in Korea than had reservists. He thought one reason for this was that more regulars than reservists were put in assault waves in battle.

McQueen's statement brought a prompt reply from Representative Wesley D'Ewart (R., Mont.), some of whose constituents at Shelby and Fairfield, Mont., had complained of inadequate training before combat. D'Ewart was quoted by the Associated Press as suggesting that parents of dead Marines be given a chance to testify as to whether they thought their sons had been adequately trained.

"They should invite the parents of some of the boys kiled in Korea to present their side of the story," he said. "I don't believe they can get a full story without that testimony."

At Rock Island, Ill., the widow of a Marine killed in Korea insisted McQueen's report was "very unsatisfactory." The Associated Press reported that she contended her husband, Sergt. Harold J. Lund, killed nine weeks after leaving home, was not adequately trained.

McQueen said Lund had received "intensive" training at Camp Pendleton, Oreg., after being called to active duty August 8. Mrs. Lund declared this training consisted in "laying around the barracks" until he was sent overseas.

McQueen said his committee also failed to find that a charge of inadequate training was justified in the case of several reservists from the Nashville, Tenn., area.

Marshal Names Unit To Study Reserves

Secretary of Defense George Marshall yesterday ordered a broad, long-range survey of the armed forces' reserve programs to develop mobilization policies fairer both to the individual and the Nation.

He handed the whole controversial question to an eight-man special committee and named Edwin H. Burgess, vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and now chairman of the Pentagon Civilian Components Policy Board as its head.

Marshall directed the group to "recommend policies to eliminate any uncertainties and inequities that have arisen under the present system." Both reservists and employers have complained about confusion of the present scheme.

President Truman recently criticised as unpatriotic employers who refuse to hire reservists because they may be called into active service.

"The objective sought in these studies is the development and maintenance of a strong reserve force with a minimum interruption to the Nation and the individual's normal existence," said the Marshall statement.

It added that Thursday's announcement of new policies regarding call up and release of reservists and Guardsmen were intended to meet the immediate situation. The Burgess committee will draft policies covering the long haul of the Cold War.

The Army, in another move, broadened its policy of discharging enlisted reservists with four or more dependents. Previously, only reservists called individually could be released. Now anyone, whether individually called or as a member of a Reserve or National Guard unit may be released.

Other members of the Burgess committee:

Brig. Gen. Melvin J. Maas, USMCR (Air); commanding officer, Wing Staff VTU 5-27, the Sperry Corp. of New York, vice-chairman, Civilian Components Policy Board.

Maj. Gen. Leo M. Kreber, NGUS, commanding general, Thirty-seventh Infantry Division, president, Wisconsin State Teachers College.

Brigadier General Hugh M. Milton, ORC; President, New Mexico Military Institute.

Rear Admiral R. S. Riggs, USN, Assistant Chief Naval Operations (Naval Reserve).

Major General John T. Walker, Director of Personnel, U. S. Marine Corps.

Brigadier General Robert L. Copsey, USAFR; Deputy Special Assistant to the Chief of Staff of Reserve Forces.

Two to Be Built

Navy Allows Conversion Of 25 Ships

The Navy yesterday allotted the jobs of building two new submarines and converting 25 other ships.

The Portsmouth, N. H., naval shipyard will build a target and experimental submarine and the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn., will construct a secret type 250-ton undersea vessel.

The biggest conversion job went to the New York naval shipyard, Brooklyn, N. Y. It is to convert the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Bennington to carry newer and heavier planes.

The 27 projects announced today are only a start on a big naval construction-modernization program approved by Congress. The Navy said it expects to award to private shipyards in the near future contracts for construction of 172 new small vessels. These include minesweeper, armored landing vehicles and lighters.

The program also calls for conversion of 145 ships in addition to the jobs announced yesterday. Most of these will be carried out at various naval shipyards in the course of regularly scheduled overhauls.

The jobs announced today included:

Conversion of two submarines—the Atule and Tench — into streamlined snorkel submarines at the Portsmouth, N. H., naval shipyard.

Three submarines—the Becuna, the Chivo and the Chopper—to be converted to snorkel at the Electric Boat Co., Groton, Conn., the Sea Robin at the Philadelphia naval shipyard, the Sea Poacher at the Charleston, S. C., naval shipyard, the Blackfin and the Calman at the Mare Island naval shipyard, Vallejo, Calif., and the Blenny at the San Francisco naval shipyard.

The submarines Raton and Ray to be converted at the Philadelphia naval shipyard into radar picket submarines.

Four destroyer escort vessels to be converted to radar pickets—the Fesenden at the Boston naval shipyard; the Kirkpatrick and Strickland at the Norfolk naval shipyard, and the Otterstetter at the Charleston naval shipyard.

Four destroyer escorts to be converted for antisubmarine warfare—the Peterson and the Tweedy at the Bath (Me.) Iron Works; the Vammen at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard, and the Lawis at the San Francisco Naval Shipyard.

Snorkel breathing tubes, which permit submarines to travel great distances without surfacing, will be installed on 19 submarines during regularly scheduled overhauls of the U-boats.

These installations have been assigned as follows: Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, two submarines; Philadelphia Naval Shipyard, six submarines; Charleston Naval Shipyard, three submarines; Mare Island Naval Shipyard, two submarines; San Francisco Naval Shipyard, four submarines; Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard, two submarines.

Czechs Curb Showing Of Leaders' Pictures

PRAGUE, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Communist-led government today decreed that nobody may make or exhibit pictures or sculpture of President Klement Gottwald or other Czech leaders without permission of the Ministry of Information.

Busts of Gottwald and Soviet Prime Minister Stalin are displayed here in public buildings, hotels and stores. The reason for the new decree was not given in the official Gazette, which published it. Some observers believed, however, that it was prompted by inartistic pictures that have been shown.

Bell's Report On Philippines To Be Printed

By The Associated Press

A United States mission's prescription for a clean-up of waste and corruption in the Philippine government as a condition for any more American financial help is due for official release today.

Unofficial versions of the report already have stirred a governmental storm in the far Pacific commonwealth and resulted in "disciplinary action" against President Elpidio Quirino's secretary for issuing a sarcastic counterblast at the United States.

The State Department said that President Truman sanctioned publication of the Bell mission's hitherto secret report, which embodies the aid plan and urges a Philippine house cleaning.

The findings of the special group Mr. Truman sent to the islands last summer are to be handed at the same time at Manila to President Elpidio Quirino by United States Ambassador Myron Cowen.

The White House has had the document for two weeks, while the Administration debated whether to go ahead now with the proposals to help the postwar Philippine Republic over a financial crisis.

Officials indicated the decision was to put the program into effect promptly, and they looked for full cooperation from the Quirino regime.

The program calls for new American outlays of 250 million dollars or more over the next several years, provided the Philippine government does its part in a self-help undertaking. The program will be administered by an Economic Cooperation Administration mission, it was reported.

Enough of the mission's criticism leaked out in advance to touch off a flare-up in Manila. Quirino's secretary, Federico Mangahas, declared that Filipinoes are "pikers" in graft compared to Americans.

President Truman had expressed regret over the outburst; Philippine Ambassador J. M. Elizalde was called into the State Department yesterday for a consultation with Assistant Secretary Dean Rusk.

Advance reports were that the survey mission, headed by former Treasury Undersecretary Daniel W. Bell, insisted on sweeping reforms in the Philippine government, a halt in the islands' trend toward socialism, and creation of a Philippine government development corporation to help speed recovery.

Mexico, Argentina Held Interested In Cohen's Auto

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (U.P.)—Gambler Mickey Cohen's $16,500 bullet-proof automobile was up for sale today and purchase nibbles were reported from the Presidents of Mexico and Argentina.

Cohen had the Cadillac specially constructed after several attempts were made on his life. The State, however, refused to give him a permit to operate the car.

Burt Chalmers, who remodeled the auto, said the $16,500 asking price was about $3500 under the market. He said cars made for the White House cost about $20,000 and are not as bullet-proof as Cohen's.

Representatives of President Aleman of Mexico and President Peron of Argentina have indicated interest in the car, he said.

Stricken Swedish King Sinks; Alarm Spreads in Stockholm

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 27 (AP).—King Gustav V, Sweden's 92-year-old monarch, lay critically ill tonight in Drottningholm Palace. His heart appeared to be weakening.

Fatigue gripped the tall, gaunt man who amazed the world by romping over the tennis courts until he was 88 and hunting until he was 91.

A bulletin issued at noon by Dr. Hjalmar Casserman, the King's physician, and two specialists, said coughing and a marked difficulty in breathing had considerably affected the action of his heart. The pulse was rather frequent and sometimes fluttering.

A bulletin late tonight said no "great change" had occurred. His weariness persisted.

The King's oldest son, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, and Crown Princess Louise visited him this afternoon.

Reports of the illness were received with alarm in the capital. There was concern that his illness might be Gustaf's last, though he pulled through several recent attacks of bronchial catarrh.

In the morning, the King had, as usual, presided at the cabinet council from his wheel chair. He looked very tired. He has lately complained of pains in his legs.

King Gustaf has appeared feeble since he returned from his summer residence at Solliden, on the isle of Oeland, September 8. He had to be carried from his train. Since then he has suffered from breathing difficulties and weariness.

'Disciplinary Action' Costs Payless Position

MANILA, (Saturday), Oct. 28 (AP).—President Elpidio Quirino today took his promised "disciplinary action" against his private secretary for criticizing the United States. He relieved him of a secondary job for which there was no pay.

The secretary, Federico Mangahas, author of a controversial statement about America, will stay on as Quirino's private secretary, a $4000-a-year job. But he was relieved as acting director of the Philippine Information Council.

Red Mortars Hurl Shells Into Laokay

SAIGON, Indo-China, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Communist mortar shells exploded within the French frontier bastion of Laokay today as the French admitted that their forces, in fighting retreat, had withdrawn six miles to the banks of the Red River.

Ground troops were dug in along the west bank of the river, two to three miles above and below the virtually encircled fortress, a French military spokesman said, while bombers and fighters repeatedly hit rebel concentrations.

In the heart of Communist-controlled territory 160 air miles northwest of Hanoi, Laokay is the last big border post in French hands. Its garrison has been supplied by air for months. From Loakay east and south to Langson the entire frontier is in Ho Chi Minh's hands.

To the east French pilots reported today they had seen laborers repairing airstrips. The spokesman said this was significant, if confirmed, because the Indo-Chinese Reds have no air force—yet.

During the last summer in southern China some 30,000 Viet Minh guerillas were trained and equipped with modern weapons, including antiaircraft guns, but not planes. So far, the spokesman emphasized, no planes with Chinese Communist insignia have been spotted over Indo-China.

The battle for Laokay actually began on Monday, when the French evacuated the strongpoint of Muong Khuong, 20 miles to the north, which guards the northeastern approaches. Tuesday night the rebels struck from the southeast and Bamphiet, 10 miles east of Laokay, was surrendered.

U. S. Rids France of Surplus By Huge Alcohol Purchase

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

American dollars—used to buy French alcohol—are getting the French Government out of a jam similar to the American surplus potato mess.

Paris yesterday announced that France had sold its surplus alcohol stocks to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for use in the American synthetic rubber program. The contract calls for 80 million gallons to be delivered in the next 12 months. About 30 million gallons have already been delivered to American buyers, an Associated Press report from Paris stated.

(Government records show that the only previous purchase of alcohol from France in recent years was in 1941, when only 154 gallons were imported.)

The result, according to a French Embassy spokesman "was the same as anywhere when the Government subsidizes a crop. The farmers grew too much."

The excess beets acquired under the subsidy were made into alcohol. To get rid of this alcohol, the French government required gasoline importers to mix it into motor fuel in quantities of at least 10 percent. Motorists have complained bitterly.

The Associated Press reported that "the disposal of the huge alcohol surpluses which the government got through subsidies to sugar beet growers is expected to lead to the end of the gasoline-alcohol mixture which French motorists have been burning for several months."

While RFC is buying the French alcohol, another Government corporation, the Commodity Credit Corporation, is buying and destroying on the ground where they were grown, millions of bushels of American potatoes. In previous years these surplus potatoes had been made into alcohol.

American farmers also had hoped that the Government would use large quantities of surplus grain, some bought under the farm price support subsidy and deteriorating, to provide alcohol for the rubber program. Such plans are now out the window.

The sale to the United States was at 48½ cents a gallon.

Chinese Reds Battle Allies in No. Korea

northwestern Korea Friday. He did not say how they were identified as Chinese.

The answer to the presence of Chinese in the Communist ranks might be found in the statement of a Chinese soldier captured Thursday near Unsan.

The Chinese, who said he was Pvt. Li Shin-Man, 34, told interrogators that he and other Chinese troops sent into Korea to help the North Korean Reds in the past two weeks were not "old Communists," but were former Chinese Nationalist soldiers.

Li told American questioners that he understood 40,000 Chinese troops had been sent into Korea in the past two weeks and that he himself entered nine days ago.

'Just Following Orders'

"We were just following orders," he said. He hinted that most Chinese did not relish the assignment and were not fighting with enthusiasm.

Other Chinese captured in the past few days also have said that many thousands of Chinese Red troops had entered the war on the side of the North Koreans.

American officers have viewed their statements with some skepticism. They said that the Chinese captured were "illiterate" and of such low rank that they could not be expected to have information on troop movements and strength.

AP Correspondent Jack Macbeth, with the United States First Corps, said South Korean interrogators quoted Chinese prisoners captured in the Unsan area as saying a full corps—perhaps 30,000 men—had come from Manchuria to bolster the weakening North Korean Reds.

An American adviser with the South Korean First Division, who reported the 62 dead Chinese counted near Unsan, said the division was attacked Thursday by a "Chinese" division which used heavy mortars and small arms but no artillery.

Big U. S. Guns Effective

Heavy American guns supporting the South Koreans drove the enemy back during Thursday night.

The American officer said Gen. Paik Sun Yup, commander of the South Korean First Division, reported the Chinese had withdrawn northwest of Unsan.

Paik fought the Chinese Reds when he was with the Japanese in Manchuria before World War II, the American said.

"Paik knows their tactics well and believes that if they are hard-hit to begin with, as we hit them, they will not stand up."

The Republican First Division unit that clashed with the force of Chinese and North Koreans found itself in the odd position of being driven north toward its own eventual goal—the Manchurian border—on Thursday.

But the time was not ripe for this type of northward advance, so the South Koreans fought southward away from their final objective on Friday and restored their supply route.

Allies Try tot Secure Road

The Republican First and Sixth divisions were struggling to secure the road from Pakchon, near the Yellow sea on the west coast, to the Manchurian border at Chosan.

From Unsan, 20 miles north of Pakchon, the First Division sent two regiments northward to make contact with the elements of the Sixth Division near Onjong, 10 miles north of Unsan.

The United States Twenty-Fourth Division, in a companion drive to that of the Commonwealth Brigade, crossed the Taeryoung River in force Friday at Pakshon and at ferry points north.

The Twenty-Fourth aimed its spearheads at the northwest corner of Korea.

It met some resistance from dug-in Reds but American planes and artillery roared into action to clear the path.

Allies Near Pungsan

In North-Central Korea, a South Korean regiment reported a seven-mile northward advance to within five miles of Pungsan, 38 miles from the Manchurian border.

United States Marine pilots attacked Reds in the area. Two pilots were shot down. One died but the other was rescued by helicopter.

Southwest of this unit, another Republican regiment climbed a ridge five miles from the lower reaches of the Pujon reservoir.

A strong force of Reds was reported fighting to hold the Pujon reservoir and nearby Changjin reservoir which, together, supply water for eight hydroelectric power plants.

On the east coast, the South Korean Capital Division was slowed by two inches of snow and freezing temperatures but it forged ahead seven miles to a point five miles southeast of the port of Songjin. Songjin is 162 miles southwest of the Siberian-Korean border and 38 miles southeast of the Manchurian-Korean border. The temperature was estimated at 30 degrees Fahrenheit. It was 35 in Seoul Thursday night.

By-passed Reds employed nuisance tactics around the port of Wonsan farther south along the coast where an Allied Force of 50,000 men began pouring ashore two days ago.

Two battalions of American and South Korean Marines were sent against the 4000 Reds, led by a North Korean brigadier general and operating from the Diamond Mountains.

Marine pilots reported they killed 1000 Reds south of Wonsan in the past four days.

A United States Tenth Corps spokesman said the Red harrassing tactics were not serious, but added:

"There are more North Koreans behind us than ahead of us. They are coming out of the hills all down the coast, raiding towns, holding up trains and generally annoying us."

The Allied Air Force had a quiet day Thursday, for lack of targets.

The North Korean air force got one plane in the air. It dropped five bombs in the United States Twenty-fourth Division sector in the northwest but there was no report of casualties.

CIO Union Loses To Independents At Weirton Steel

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—The Independent Steelworkers Union today defeated the CIO United Steelworkers in a National Labor Relations Board collective bargaining election held in the plants of the Weirton Steel Co.

The vote was 7921 for the ISU to 3454 for the CIO-USW.

The NLRB said 11,253 ballots were cast in the election Tuesday and Thursday in the Weirton plants at Steubenville and Weirton, W. Va., almost a 100 percent turnout.

William Huff, temporary chairman of the ISU, said the Independent union would proceed immediately to write a contract and secure company recognition of the union.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the United Steelworkers, refused to comment on the outcome except to say that the vote given the USW "was larger than I expected."

Heat Lack Closes Langley School

Children at the new Langley Elementary School, near New Hampshire ave. and University la., had an unexpected holiday yesterday and may be free again Monday because of heating trouble.

The weather was too cold for use of portable heaters that were being used pending completion of the heating plant, and the children were dismissed. If the weather Monday is cold and the plant has not been completed, they will be released again.

Expect Draft, Doctors Told

last minute voluntary enlistments of induction eligible physicians may not save them from at least a taste of recruit life.

"Where a doctor is drafted, he must go in as a recruit, because legally you can't draft a commissioned officer," said the second speaker, Dr. Howard A. Rusk of New York, who heads the national committee to advise doctors on their draft status.

This means, Dr. Rusk explained, that although the military services have promised to speed up the process of commissioning doctors, those doctors who wait until they receive notices to report for physical examination "may serve at least several weeks as a recruit."

As recruits, he added, they can't be used as doctors, but may be assigned ward-boy service or "even be assigned to basic training."

Dr. Rusk said it's uncertain whether a drafted doctor who is later discharged to accept the commission he volunteered for before induction will be eligible for the $100 a month incentive bonus given volunteers.

Resolutions passed by the health officers yesterday included:

1. Disapproval of the proposed national compulsory health legislation now being considered.

2. A motion favoring establishment of a Department of Health, with Cabinet status, but headed by "a career physician in public health."

3. A request that Congress restore to 150 million dollars the hospital construction aid funds recently cut to 75 million dollars.

Dr. Roy L. Cleere executive director of the Colorado State Department of Public Health, was elected president of the association.

Peru's Music Is Heard in Piano Recital

By Paul Hume

Luisa Morales-Macedo returned to the Hall of the Americas last night after an absence of about 10 years.

The Peruvian pianist, known also under her married name of Mme. Sigismond Stojowski, built her program around two works based on the music of Peru.

One of these was a set of four Inca tunes arranged for piano by the artist's late husband. Taking over native melodies set down by Aguilar, Stojowski gave them a rich, but obviously central European background. They make a beautiful sound on the piano, though they leave little South American imagery in their romantic dress.

These were played with unusual feeling and grace. The second work from Peru was a set of reminiscences from the opera, Ollanta, by Jose Valle-Riestra. Ollanta was first produced in Lima in 1901. Valle-Riestra was not only a composer, but also a pianist and teacher who gave last night's pianist her first lessons.

Mme. Stojowski's devotion to her former teacher and to her native music was unmistakable as she played what amounted to her own arrangement of his opera music, for she performed the difficult task of playing the piano with the complexities of the full orchestral score before her.

The magnificent new piano recently purchased by the Pan-American Union served beautifully to show the easy command of tone at Stojowska's disposal. Her recital opened with the first of Beethoven's two sonatas marked, "Quasi una fantasia." It was a pleasant relief to hear this companion to the more often played "Moonlight."

Mafia Leader Seized in Raid

man Raymon H. Chadeayne and Assistant District Attorney Aaron Koota.

Koota said they weren't.

"Bench warrants will be issued immediately," the judge said. "Bring them in."

The two accused men, Patrolman John J. Doyle, jr., 30, of the Bronx, and retired Patrolman Aaron Feld, 44, of Brooklyn, were arrested shortly thereafter, and held for arraignment.

A police headquarters spokesman said Doyle, a former plainclothesman assigned to the Broadway and Times Square area, would be suspended from the force.

It was reported that the perjury charges were in connection with the alleged "accommodation arrest" of an underling bookmaker in a ring headed by boss gambler Harry Gross.

(An accommodation arrest is one made by police to give the impression that gamblers are being prosecuted.)

Gross, now in jail as a material witness under $250,000 bail, allegedly ran a 20-million-dollar-a-year bookmaking business, and said he had paid police about one-twentieth of the gross for protection.

The disclosures led to replacement of the city's former police commissioner by the new police head, former Federal prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy, and complete reshuffling of personnel.

Meanwhile, the grand jury continued hearing testimony about mysteriously missing wire-tap evidence made by police in a restaurant where Gross allegedly made payoffs to police.

Suspended Patrolman John Gilgan, who made the wiretap records, and Lieut. John C. Peterson, who ordered the wire-tapping, were called before the jury to try to clear up what happened to the missing notes.

Attorney, 2 Deputies Are Indicted at Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 27 (U.P.).—A "racket busting" grand jury indicted the attorney for the S. & G. syndicate and two deputy sheriffs today as it continued a drive to clean out gambling on the gold coast.

The number charged since the Dade County grand jury started its investigation two months ago rose to 33. They include ex-Sheriff Jimmy Sullivan and the eight members of the S. & G. syndicate.

New indictments were against Attorney Ben Cohen, who represents the S. & G. syndicate, and Deputies Jim Hawkins and R. S. McElroy, and two un-named men. The two deputies submitted their resignations shortly before they were arrested.

Cohen, former president of the Miami Beach Bar Association, filed a motion earlier this week to quash the indictments against the S. & G. syndicate members. He was charged with operating a gambling house and released under $5000 bond.

Robert P. Patterson, chairman of the special crime commission of the American Bar Association, said last night that Federal legislation appears necessary to control a "dangerous criminal combination operating in interstate commerce."

The former Secretary of War said his bar group is "pretty well convinced" such a combination exists after an all-day session with the Senate Crime committee. Committee Counsel Rudolph Halley gave the bar association commitee a full review of the Crime Committee's confidential files.

"It would seem," Patterson said, "that the evil is on an organized basis . . . national in scope . . . and generally of a size which extends across State lines."

The preliminary review, he said, makes the problem seem to be "a fit subject for a cure by Congress."

Kefauver said the bar group agreed on a program yesterday to help the Senate investigation by advising on the direction of the crime inquiry and "particularly by legislative proposals."

Patterson said he has no recommendations yet on what sort of Federal legislation should be approved. He added that there are two lines of approach to the crime problem:

1. New legislation on criminal procedures.

2. Better enforcement of present Federal laws.

Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, said the support of the bar association group is "the most important backing the committee has gotten."

"To get at the general problem of how to thwart organized crime," he said, "we must have joint Federal, State and local effort backed up the lawyers of America."

Patterson announced the bar association group has made Judge Morris Ploscowe, New York City magistrate, its executive director. Ploscowe volunteered his services.

Patterson made it clear that he thinks the crime problem is nation-wide.

"The flourishing of criminal activities is in the face of State and local law enforcement officers," he said, adding that attempts at law enforcement in the restricted jurisdiction of local authorities is like "playing ring around the rosie."

"There is ground to believe that characters of th undrworld have access to very large sums of money and no regard for the effect of the law," he said.

Patterson's commission met with the crime committee as Halley revealed distillers have been asked for detailed information to determine how far gangland influences have "infiltrated" the wholesale liquor business.

This followed a statement by Kefauver that "hoodlums" have "moved in" on liquor distributorships in some large cities.

U. S. And Canada

The new defense production agreement signed Thursday with Canada is an eminently sensible recognition that in time of emergency—especially a danger from the north—the frontier between our two countries is meaningless. What the pact provides is that the two countries shall coordinate their military procurement requirements, that each shall have equal access to raw materials, and that economic controls shall, when necessary, be directed toward these ends. Coordination will be handled by the Joint Industrial Mobilization Planning Committee. This is a necessary step in encouraging the manufacture of defense items wherever they can be best produced, regardless of country, and it should avert the costly scramble to outbid each other for raw materials. As an evidence of the close cooperation, Canada is planning to impose restrictions on new building for amusement purposes similar to those just announced in the United States.

Actually, the agreement is a revival of the Hyde Park agreement which prevailed during World War II. It is no credit to the foresight in the United States that this country bears responsibility for lapse of the original agreement and that before the Korean war jolted the Administration to its senses there was little interest in reinstating it. Both Canada and the United States are dedicated to the same way of life, and both are counted upon heavily as arsenals for the defense of the West. It is altogether proper that they should function as a unit in safeguarding a common security, and their example is one which might be profitably copied in Europe.

Balanced Budget?

Owing to a lag in military spending and a rise in tax receipts, Treasury officials are predicting that the Federal cash budget for 1951 will be balanced, or nearly balanced, at the high level of approximately 48 billion dollars, even without allowing for further prospective tax increases. This cash budget, not the regular budget, measures the total flow of money between the Government and the public, and reflects the inflationary impact of deficit spending and the deflationary effect of surpluses. When cash inflow and outflow are in balance, Government spending is neither inflationary nor deflationary. The public may well ask, therefore, why the Administration insists that tax increases are necessary to curb inflation, if the cash budget is about to be balanced.

The answer is that defense spending is off to a slow start; it will be much higher next year and for the indefinite future. It is in anticipation of these larger outlays that much heavier taxes are required. As the Institute of Life Insurance points out: "The real inflation test is still to come, and will be clearly apparent a year from now when defense outlays reach their peak." In other words, unless additional taxes are voted, the budget deficits of succeeding years will provide fuel with which to feed the fires of inflation. It is to be hoped that a temporary balancing of the budget will not delude the public into believing that the dangerous potentialities of deficit financing have been exaggerated or cause Congress to change its mind about the need for another and a stiff tax act.

Missiles And Munitions

Appointment of K. T. Keller to direct guided missile development in the Department of Defense indicates a needed emphasis on these new weapons. Dr. Vannevar Bush, in his book Modern Arms and Free Men, looks upon the guided missile as a weapon of great potentiality both for offense and for defense against certain kinds of atomic attack. Extensive research and experimentation, with the details highly classified, have been going on in several military departments. The naming of Mr. Keller, who is president of the Chrysler Corp. and a top-rank industrialist, does not mean that the perfection of any one missile is imminent, but it probably does signify that development is far enough advanced so that coordination is necessary. In other words, while a wide variety of applied research is essential, it would be fabulously expensive for each service to build prototypes without relation to what other services are doing. That the guided missile program has reached this stage is encouraging in light of the congressional criticism of the time lag.

We wish that similar encouragement were indicated in another vital agency of the Department of Defense—the Munitions Board. Criticism of the Munitions Board reached a peak last summer with the disclosure of critical weaknesses in the stockpiling program. Yet the board has been without a chairman since the resignation of Hubert Howard in mid-September. Several reasons have been advanced for the fact that the stockpiling program was only 38.4 percent complete in July, one being that the Munitions Board was anxious to avoid bidding up raw material prices. Presumably stockpiling has been drastically improved since then, but neither the stockpiling program nor the board's other important functions in industrial mobilization planning and the standardization of military purchasing can function well without top leadership. It would be folly for the President to allow the Munitions Board to drag along leaderless as the National Security Resources Board did for so many months.

Making History

The Defense Ministers of the Atlantic powers are meeting in Washington today to make history. Their mandate is to complete the Atlantic Alliance by creating a single military establishment in western Europe under a unified command. The strategical assumption back of this decision to join hands across the Atlantic in a common defense system is that from now on North America's frontier, as well as western Europe's, is on the Elbe. The United States has gone so far as to pledge about five divisions, as part of the combined force, and a commander in chief. Both pledges already have transformed the Atlantic atmosphere—that is to say, there is a marked subsidence in the "great panic" which has held western Europe in its grip since the Russians bristling with 175 divisions emerged out of the war hell-bent upon aggression.

The change of policy is a vivid illustration of the American purpose to safeguard the general peace. What a change! After the first war the United States reneged on a promise to Clemenceau to guarantee the French border with Germany. Action over Korea, coupled with the surety to be posted in Europe, has made clear beyond a peradventure that this time the United States means business. But there is a residual hesitation in the minds of the French. Any continental army whose responsibility will go as far east as the Elbe must obviously include Germans, yet the French wish to postpone any German participation, at least till a French-German agreement has been achieved on the Schuman Plan. Only a little imagination is required to appreciate the French position—the kind of imagination which General Bradley once kindled for an audience with the reminder that to some people living in Georgia Atlanta is still burning. The French still remember the German occupation.

But this is only half the reason back of the French attitude. The Atlantic Alliance is tolerable to peace-loving people as a necessary instrument of the common security only as it contributes to the development of a common life for Europe. To create only a military camp in Europe is not enough; what is needed as an insurance of security is a new society which shall absorb fragmented sovereignties out of which, in the final analysis, sprang two devastating wars covering the civilized world. This is a conclusion which has come to be repeated less as a challenge than as an incantation, yet it has the sanction of historical scholarship, as Prof. G. P. Gooch is the latest to testify. Dr. Gooch, in his Studies in Diplomacy and Statecraft sums up the blood and tears of two generations in these words:

> The ultimate cause of the explosion was the European anarchy, the absence of international machinery, the doctrine of the unfettered national state, the universal assumption that the graver disputes could only be settled by war.

The Schuman Plan, as we have said over and over again, is the first piece of postwar statesmanship which would plow up the roots of fratricidal conflict.

However, the Schuman Plan—not to say a European parliament—is a diplomatic problems outside the scope of the Defense Ministers. The best way of meeting the French position would be to agree here and now to set up a supreme commander, to outline his powers, to create the pool of manpower and armaments, and to leave room for German participation in the organization to be established. In return for this postponement of a decision on Germany, there must be wholehearted and all-in pooling by the signatories, for the momentous undertaking is a calculated risk for the United States and Canada of the utmost magnitude. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization—NATO for short—as it emerges out of the current meetings requires a great draft of faith on the part of the signatories. Half in and half out is no way to build up real organization. What Mr. Churchill has called the "hideous gap" in European defense is less in armaments than in solidarity—a solidarity expressed in the Soviet Union in directional unity. This is the priceless ingredient that the Defense Ministers are met together to provide.

Subversive Scientists

Since scientists are preeminently men of ideas, it was natural enough that they should incur the wrath of Senator Joseph McCarthy. What is remarkable about the Senator's latest diatribe is that it indicts a whole profession and seems intended to discredit individuals who, while not employed by the Government, possess knowledge and skills indispensable to the national security. If the men denounced by Senator McCarthy in a statement published in an appendix to the Congressional Record (and therefore immune to the challenge of a libel action) were to be shipped off to Siberia, or to the Senator's equivalent thereof, the defense of the United States would be grievously weakened.

Prof. Harold Urey of the University of Chicago and Prof. Philip Morrison of Cornell University and Prof. Linus Pauling of the California Institute of Technology—all accused of "subversive" affiliations by the Senator—have made monumental contributions to our understanding of the physical universe in general and to the military strength of the United States in particular. If they had been considered disloyal because they entertained opinions at variance with Senator McCarthy's, we might not now have preeminence in the field of atomic energy.

As evidence that "the ranks of American scientists have been infiltrated to an alarming degree by the Communist enemies of the United States," Senator McCarthy cited the election of Prof. Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard as president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science for the year 1951. Professor Mather is one of the greatest living geologists. His infiltration of the ranks of science is by no means a recent one. He has served on the executive committee of the A. A. A. S. since 1943 and before that was a vice president. He used to be president of the American Association of Scientific Workers and is a member of both the Royal Geographical Society and the American Geographical Society. Among his nonscientific affiliations, which may or may not be considered subversive by the Senator, is the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. of which he was president from 1946 to 1948. It may be that the associates who chose him for these offices and honors are better judges of his character than Senator McCarthy.

AEC Manager

The five-billion-dollar enterprise operated by the Atomic Energy Commission combines delicate intellectual problems of scientific research and development with mammoth practical problems of engineering and construction. Marion W. Boyer, New York chemical engineer and vice president of the Esso Standard Oil Co., who has just been chosen by the commission as its new general manager, appears to be admirably suited by experience for this dual responsibility. He has been in the refining and manufacturing end of the oil business, has had scientific training and is accustomed to handling large projects. How well he will adjust to the special strictures and difficulties of carrying on such work under Government auspices is, of course, something still to be seen.

Mr. Boyer will inherit the tough and perhaps incorrigible situation that led his exceedingly able predecessor, Carroll Wilson, to resign in despair last August. The general manager of the AEC is theoretically an autonomous executor of policies laid down by the five members of the commission. But the commissioners, being accountable to the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, have been chary of delegating adequate administrative responsibility to their general manager. Subject to excessive supervision by the committee members, they have in turn tended to subject their general manager to excessive supervision in day-to-day operations. The result of this has been that the commission has never been satisfactorily free to devote itself to the determination of policy and the general manager has never enjoyed the operational authority which his office requires.

Mr. Boyer's success in meeting this situation will depend on the degree to which the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, now that the early political wrangles over the McMahon Act are out of the way, leaves the commission free to perform its task. The new general manager will at least not be burdened with the personal hostilities that dogged his predecessor. He needs a reasonably free hand. He can scarcely run a five-billion-dollar business if his board of directors keeps looking over his shoulder at every move he makes. We hope that he will win a recognition of this need in the commission and on Capitol Hill.

MacArthur's Status

On the heels of the Wake Island meeting, some understandable confusion has arisen over the precise status of General MacArthur. If MacArthur is the United Nations commander in Korea, it is asked, how can President Truman properly confer with him about policy there? Should not any discussions over Korea be held between MacArthur and the Security Council?

The answer is that General MacArthur is a man of many titles, but that on Korea his direct responsibility is to the United States Government. It was President Truman, rather than the U. N. who designated MacArthur as United Nations commander in Korea; this arose from the fact that the United States was designated as the U. N. agent in Korea. Thus, despite MacArthur's title, his responsibility is to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and through them to the President and to the United Nations. His position is not unlike that of General Eisenhower during the war in Europe; Eisenhower was at the same time supreme Allied commander and commander of United States forces.

In another capacity General MacArthur is also the supreme commander of Allied forces in the Pacific for the occupation of Japan, and in theory at least he is responsible for this job through the Army to the Far Eastern Commission. But simultaneously he is also the United States commander in the Far East. As the senior United States military officer there, it is perfectly natural that he should be consulted on policy.

Actually the purpose of President Truman's trip, as we understand it, was as much to congratulate General MacArthur for a brilliant campaign in Korea as to discuss Far Eastern problems. In any event, he is definitely responsible to the President as Commander in Chief, and Mr. Truman in no way short-circuited the United Nations in meeting him at Wake Island

"Unemployed" Wives

An article in your issue of October 24, captioned "Club Group Plans to Register Nation's 'Unemployed' Womanpower," set me to reflect on my period of unemployment. For 13 years before "going to work" I was just a housewife. This period of "idleness" produced three children.

I realize fully, the import was not as written, for the headlines have the graciousness of a facetious quote for "unemployed womanpower." However, it touched a little more deeply for the following reason: yesterday I met a friend who recently lost her husband. She is a college graduate, capable, healthy and a constructive thinker. In applying for a position she stated when she left college she married immediately and in due course raised a family. This brought forth the query (not facetiously) "Then you have really never worked?"

Just for the record, let us begin to drop this viewpoint and in maturing give the dignity and power due to the home and its assistant, director, vice president, manager or any title you wish.

In the 20 years since I have been "in business" may I say they have been the more "idle" years, for the demands are great in the early years, the needs and fulfilments diversified. In "employment" most usually there is required of one a single job—well done.

In this hour of needful alertness for the world, it is well to have had this household training, and when and if quick decisions are to be made the idle housewife will be a leader in the field.

Swimming Pools

Figures recently presented to the Recreation Board by vice-chairman James E. Schwab illustrate graphically the shortsighted policy of the Interior Department in forcing nonsegregated swimming in the District of Columbia.

Let us look at attendance figures. Total attendance in 1948 was 415,952—346,275 whites and 69,677 Negroes. Thanks to the stupidity of the Interior Department however, total attendance in 1950 dropped to 236,471—146,400 whites and 90,071 Negroes. This decline wasn't due to the ridiculous excuses of fear of polio and rainy weather. If it was, why the increase in attendance among Negroes?

The overwhelming majority of the white people in D. C. have conclusively demonstrated, as evidenced by pool attendance in 1950, that they want no part of social intermingling with Negroes.

The Interior Department, if it is not to make a complete mockery of the will of the majority, must return the pools to the status which is demanded by the majority. The majority demand segregation.

Andrew Ellicott

I have read with unusual interest the story you published about the Hon. Andrew Ellicott on October 16.

At the request of my great grandmother I was named Ellicott Dudding because General Andrew was closely related to her. She lived to be 100 years old and I often talked to her about old times. She said that Andrew Ellicott was a man with a creative mind. She often spoke of him as an unusual man with unusual ability.

When I was a boy the folks all teased me about my name "Ellicott." It was an unusual name. They would say that would be a good name for a horse or a dog and a dislike for the name took strong possession of me and I annexed the name of Earl in front of the Ellicott.

Anyhow I have the honor of being named after the man who had a big part in circles and streets of Washington, D. C.

"Lieut. Gilbert's Offense"

As it was so admirably put in your editorial of October 23, with which I, as a Negro, wholeheartedly agree, the Gilbert case is being used very strongly by the Commies as a chisel with which they will attempt to make a hole in our democratic philosophy.

I want to point out that the award of over a score of Distinguished Service Crosses, Silver Stars and Bronze Stars for gallantry in action to Negroes of the same regiment as Gilbert's (all within the past few months) not only gives the lie to Commie propaganda about race prejudice but also refutes the claims of some of us here at home who want to point to Gilbert as evidence of Negroes not making good soldiers.

If all citizens will look at Gilbert as an officer of the Army and not as a Negro, the case can be seen in a much clearer light. Gilbert, it appears, not only violated certain Articles of War, but left other men (who were also Negroes) to fight without his leadership, which was so sorely needed at that critical moment.

As the wife of an Army officer, I feel I would much prefer my husband to perform as an American should perform than to have him alive as a person who failed to demonstrate the principles of military leadership.

Baron von Weizsaecker

United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy in Germany has just pardoned Baron Ernest von Weizsaecker, who was convicted by the American court 18 months ago of conspiring to wage aggressive war. The release, according to the United Press story, "was ordered under a new policy of clemency for war criminals."

This new policy of reconciliation with war criminals can have only one conceivable motive — to curry favor among the German people. It would seem to me that no one who remembers the Hitler-Stalin pact of 1939 or the many other examples of Nazi treachery can grant one moment's consideration to any schemes for rearming the Germans. The Germans love dictators with an enduring love. They may seek an advantage first with this side and then with that; but the showdown will surely find them among the enemies of democracy.

Meanwhile, what faith in our steadfastness can remain among the people in other European lands whose friendship we need—people who knew the Nazi in person and have not our easy knack of forgetfulness? The Reds in North Korea will be glad to hear it. Can we in conscience move against them, when we release von Weizsaecker? HARRY MINER.

Clifton A. Woodrum

In Washington on October 6 there died Clifton A. Woodrum of Roanoke, Va., who represented his State's Sixth District in Congress for many years and who resigned in 1945 to become president of the American Plant Food Council, which position he held at the time of his death. While easily the most influential member of the powerful House Appropriations Committee during the New Deal days, Judge Woodrum, as he was affectionately called, gave of his time and strength unsparingly and was the unofficial head of that committee following the death of Chairman Buchanan.

The judge was the personification of the true Southern artistocrat; and his acts of kindness extended to many people, regardless of color, race, creed or political affiliation. He was respected, revered and loved by all who knew him intimately and even by those who knew him slightly.

Credo For Americans

I am a foreign service employe who has been away from the States almost two years, working for ECA in Europe. Recently, while in Switzerland, I met a young businesswoman from New York who had been touring Europe. After deploring the general talk of war, she said casually, "The worst of it is that I don't really know who is to blame, or what it's all about."

I told her that I had spent a year in Greece and that some of the answers were obvious there. Her retort left me speechless. She said, "But the only reason we are helping Greece is because we want her oil." I was so shocked, and angry too, at her appalling lack of knowledge and understanding of the tremendous effort being made by her country that I could not answer.

How could I make her see the fear on the face of the Greek man when he told about the hostages (his neighbors) who had been killed by the Communists? How could I tell her about the shy young Greek girl who had her first job with me, for which she may pay with her life if the Communists move in? How could I—but I should have tried.

How many more are there at home oblivious to all the factual reporting, the fine editorials? These must be reached somehow if our country is to make the all-out effort essential to survival. We must face the fact that there exists in our country (as in every country) a group that is easily swayed, that either does not read the facts or will not believe them. What is our Government doing to reach these people? Much money is being spent, and rightly, on the Voice of America and other efforts to reach foreign peoples. How much is being spent to hammer home the truth to careless, unthinking Americans?

Perhaps some who are clever with words could devise a "creed" for those of us less gifted—a simple statement of belief and faith that we can repeat over and over to the weak links in our armor. Something like this, perhaps: "I believe in my country and the principles for which it stands. I believe that these principles are threatened by a great and evil force. I believe that this force must be met and defeated, wherever the battlefield, whatever the cost."

If some such statement were made often enough, through the right channels, it might reach those Americans who fail to realize that their vacations in Europe and their liberties at home are possible only because their Government has taken a firm stand in such key spots as Greece and Korea. They must be made aware, so that they will support instead of undermine their country's efforts.

Man-Made Motor Perils

By Malvina Lindsay

Jekyll-Hyde Menace

MOUNTING motor car casualties (36,000 deaths expected this year), and prediction of a peak tide of motor traffic in 1951 have centered attention on the nationwide Jekyll-Hyde motor menace.

Social scientists as well as safety experts are asking: What happens to Joe Doakes when he gets behind the wheel of a car? In social gatherings and at home Joe likely observes the niceties of civilized conduct. On golf links or tennis court he is sportsmanlike to a fault. In his office he is unobtrusive, cooperative. But at the wheel of his car he often plunges back into the personality of some glowering jungle ancestor.

He can't get where he is going fast enough, no matter how unimportant his destination. He cheats on traffic rules, takes risks, berates other motorists and all pedestrians, and rasps the air with his modern tom-tom, the motor horn. Get a group of such Joes together and you have an every-fellow-for-himself traffic anarchy that seems inconceivable in 1950.

Here again is a case of man's not keeping up with the machine he rules. For recent studies of the perils of the motor age show that human attitudes are primarily the cause of accidents and fatalities. More than faulty machinery, lack of technical skill, even drunkenness, are human carelessness, recklessness, selfishness, aggressiveness to blame for the annual crippling and killing of so many Americans.

HENCE another field of activity, that of halting the motor death scourge, moves into the realm of the emotions. The big job now is to extend the civilization of man to his role in traffic.

About 8000 high schools throughout the country are trying to do something about this by means of driver instruction. Here again the emphasis is on attitudes, law respect, civilized behavior at the wheel. Most courses devote about one-third of their instruction to this phase. This movement was begun in the early 1930s, but has had its greatest development since the war.

Now it has been going on long enough to measure some results. A Delaware study made this year of 2200 drivers of a special age group, half of whom had received driver instruction in high schools, and half not, showed striking comparisons. In arrests for traffic violations, only 5.2 percent of the trained drivers were involved, as against 24.9 percent of the untrained. In accidents, the ratio was 5.1 percent of trained against 22.9 percent of untrained; in police warnings, 9.2 percent of trained against 31.2 percent of untrained.

If highways and streets are to be made safer than forest lanes in the days of Robin Hood, such training is needed on a wide scale. But millions of potential Mr. Hydes-at-the-wheel are untouched by it. And, barring world-wide hostilities, next year more motorists than ever before will be at large, predicts Russell E. Singer, executive vice president of the American Automobile Association. Higher taxes, he thinks, will contribute to this, since motor travel is relatively cheap. Then, too, car owners, sensitive to the uncertainty of the times, are in the mood for getting the most use and pleasure possible out of their cars.

"TOUGHER" action by law is seen as coming emergency action by Clifford J. Fletcher, commissioner of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, New York. In a recent address to the American Automobile Association convention, he warned that unless motorists cultivated better manners and more law respect, stricter controls on them were inevitable. More of a problem than the drunken driver was the driver with bad manners, he declared. Human elements, as impatience, discourtesy and recklessness, were blamed by him for a high percentage of accidents.

Men between 20 and 24 have been found, in a recent study to be the worst offenders in motor car accidents, with 21 being the most dangerous age for drivers. This study, by A. R. Lauer, professor of psychology and director of a driving laboratory at Iowa State College, was presented to the National Safety Council as part of an effort to find better educational methods for safe driving. It also showed that potential skill alone does not make safe drivers and that aggressiveness and lack of judgment on driving hazards stand high as the cause of accidents.

Nobody seems to have looked into why a motor wheel so often brings an outcropping of primitive emotions, even from meek men and women. This suggests, however, that the civilizing of man for his participation in traffic may be a basic undertaking that goes back to the nursery.

Al Jolson

Where is the American's scale of values? Certainly Al Jolson was a man of mediocre talents at best. Pleasing personality, yes, but little reason to warrant such idolatry.

Overemphasis on the superfluous is an American hallmark. I shudder to think of the passing away of such national heroes as Sinatra, Ted Williams or Arthur Godfrey! General Marshall and Einstein will probably not rate half the news space as did Jolson. O tempora, O mores!

Distrust of America

By Marquis Childs

No Nation An Island

KARACHI, Pakistan — The subtle adaptability of the Communist approach is nowhere better illustrated than in this Moslem country with the tremendous problems of a new nation plus the burden of ancient poverty. The Communist aim in Pakistan is to convince the peasant that the Koran itself approves of the Communist way of life.

Childs

A student of the Koran knows, of course, that this is entirely false. But the illiterate farmer cannot know, particularly if his priest tells him that the Koran favors communism. And this is happening in some villages; he is ready to believe.

Economically he has nothing to lose, having hit the lowest level of existence. If his holy book sanctions the glittering promises of this new political creed, then he will be doubly blessed.

How far this has taken hold is impossible to say, but the indications are that it may be striking deep into the soil, seeming ready-made for the seeds of violent change. This relationship of the Koran to Marx and Lenin also has an appeal to the people in this part of the world who love to split philosophic hairs. They relish the disputatious discussion along religious and political lines to an extent that is difficult for the Westerner to conceive.

It is here that the Marxist mind often meets the Moslem mind. Moreover, the Koran does put stress on cooperative relationship and the idea of brother helping brother. Scholars say there is just enough of this stress for the Communists to base their subtle appeal on this relationship between the Moslem peoples and communism.

ON THE other side of this appeal is the growing anti-Western attitude that is reflected in many ways among the educated classes. It is conspicuous in the press, including the leading newspapers, which are owned by wealthy men. The Pakistan Times, the largest English language daily, recently published a cartoon showing an American soldier in a tank bearing a dollar sign crossing the thirty-eighth parallel in Korea and proclaiming:

"Our heroic fight against what we have indicated was the unification of Korea by force is now reaching the glorious state where we hope to establish the unification of Korea by force."

A headline in the same paper said: "American Atrocities in Korea." This is based on the protest by the Communist Chinese to the International Red Cross.

The newspaper Dawn, which in many respects is the organ of the present government, often takes a sharp anti-American line. An editorial recently attacked Syngman Rhee, suggesting that he is merely a puppet for the Americans. The same editorial warned the Americans and the United Nations to take heed of the land reforms introduced in northern Korea by the Communists.

This last, in my opinion, is the key to most of the Far East. So long as the feudal system of landlordism exists side by side with the Communist promises to the peasant for a patch of land of his own, there can be no stability in the Middle East and Far East.

On the level of the intellectuals and many of the government officials this is allied to the conviction that economic development here can never parallel the growth and development of capitalism of a country rich in resources like the United States. The wife of the Secretary of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, Mrs. Ikramullah, is one of the advanced leaders for women's rights and modernization in the country and is a member of the Constituent Assembly. In a speech on United Nations observance she linked imperialism and capitalism as the forces resisting the essential change in the depressed areas of the world.

THIS IS NOT the reason for the defeatism concerning America's position on Pakistan and the rest of the Far East. The United States Information Service is doing an excellent job here presenting the best phases of American life and explaining the American viewpoint. But inevitably, in the very nature of its assignment, it is limited in scope. Moreover, merely the putting forward in films, photographs, etc., the advanced stage of America's development may be creating the feeling that this underdeveloped nation can never reach such a standard.

Perhaps the time has come to expand the scope of the American approach. It may be essential to deal in a more realistic manner with the anti-Americanism in the local press, which sometimes is merely the result of being bought up by Russian money. But far more important is the beginning of economic aid instead of the vague promises the Point 4 program has long held out.

This aid need not be on the scale of the Marshall Plan. Relatively small sums spent now can show an example of American technology in agriculture to raise the level of livestock, which is so depleted and poor. The U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization already has opened such a demonstration center in Lahore and any small additional American aid could mean many more such centers.

In one of his speeches in the United States, Prime Minister Liaqat Ali Khan spoke of America as an island of high prosperity in which was for the most part a great sea of poverty. He raised the question of whether the island could continue to exist alone with the vast mass of people living under substandard conditions. And that is the question Americans must think about at this time when survival itself is at stake.

'Atom Vote' Aiding McMahon

Now Republicans are trying to cut in on the atom vote. To coach former Representative Joseph E. Talbot, McMahon's opponent, they have brought in Gen. Leslie R. Groves, wartime head of the Manhattan atom bomb project.

Groves, an advocate of military control of atomic energy, charges McMahon's leadership for civilian controls resulted in "leaks" and infiltration of people who are "suspect." He tells voters McMahon doesn't "own" the atom and "knows nothing about it.'

McMahon retorts that Groves "played Santa Claus to Stalin" while head of the Manhattan project.

"The United States lost more valuable secrets while the project was under Groves' management than during any other comparable period in American history," the Senator adds.

McMahon Bringing In Dr. Urey

To trump the Republican atom authority, McMahon is bringing in Dr. Harlod Urey, one of the leading atomic scientists, in what promises to be a new kind of atomic warfare.

Except for the governorship race, which is getting pretty rough, and McMahon's bouts with Groves, Connecticut is staging a rather gentlemanly campaign compared to the scandal-raking, mudflinging going on in New York and Pennsylvania.

Bowles and all four of the Senate candidates are Yale men, and wouldn't think of calling each other "bums" or "jerks."

But Representative John Lodge, the ex-actor, ex-lawyer running against Bowles, is from Harvard and sometimes forgets himself. At least the folks helping write his speeches and literature do. Some of their brochures and cartoons aimed at Bowles are just short of libelous.

The Democrats jibe at Lodge as "a hand-picked Charlie McCarthy" and "Shirley Temple's leading man."

Strongest and most personable of the two Republican Senate candidates is Prescott S. Bush, partner in Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co., who commutes into New York from Greenwich.

At campaign rallies, Bush likes to warble Yale's "Wiffenpoof" song with a quartet, or pluck a guitar with a band. His debates with Senator Benton are well-mannered affairs, with the two finding many points in common.

Benton Uses Helicopter

Benton, running for the unexpired term of former Senator Ray Baldwin after a Bowles appointment to the Senate, hedgehops around the State in a perambulating helicopter to stir up lagging interest.

When his pilot gets into difficulties with the State aeronautics commission, Republicans suspect a publicity gag. Frequently the helicopter lands at the wrong meetings, but nobody's called him "Wrong Way Benton." Abusive New York and Pennsylvania Republicans would have jumped at the chance.

From the start this has been an advertiser's, not a politician's, outing. Comic books, lavish use of radio and television and lush billboard spreads by both sides run into big money. After digging deeply into his own pockets, Benton recently had to appeal to his friends for funds to keep his helicopter running.

Republicans may pull some punches on Benton and McMahon, but Bowles is kept busy dodging brickbats. For good measure, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) came here to speak against him. Republicans profess no hand in the McCarthy affair but Democrats insist the GOP indirectly booked him.

"Bowles Is Against Trout"

In their search for ammunition against the Governor, Republicans are using a fine-tooth comb. Because he put fishing license fees into a State conservation fund, pamphlets sent to fishermen say: "Bowles is against trout."

Dentists are being told that Bowles killed their State dental bill, even though the Republican House is still sitting on a revised version of it.

He's also charged with bringing in "outsiders" of pinkish tendencies to help run the State government. Bowles vigorously denies this. He says every appointment has been cleared through the regular Democratic organization.

Bowles is counting heavily on the "Little Fair Deal program he pushed through at five separate special sessions of the legislature to turn out votes that never showed in an off year before.

Among measures that have mass appeal is his school-building program that will put 96,000 school children in new classrooms next year, and some 100,000 the year following. About 12,000 families are moving into new homes made possible by his State Housing Law.

Cut in Draft Quota Helps

Bowles received one important election break when Connecticut's draft quota was cut in half for December as a result of service credits reflecting entry of the State's Forty-third National Guard Division into Federal service. Bowles was one of the chief advocates of rotation of National Guard units in Federal service. Republicans raised Ned about it, but now the policy is paying campaign dividends.

What about that Democratic jinx? Except for 1934, Democrats have never captured this state in a non-Presidential year, due to light voting. But this year's stakes are high enough to produce a larger vote. Besides the double-decker Senate race, the gubernatorial choice for the first time will serve four years instead of two.

Connecticut's six House seats, now split three and three between the two parties, will probably swing with the statewide race.

Republicans are claiming they will carry five and possibl six of the House districts if they produce the majority they expect against Bowles.

Democrats say they, too, can pick up two to three seats if the governor is reelected.

So Bowles is the man to elect or beat. How he runs will tell the Connecticut story.

Soviet Bloc Fails to Delay U. N. Move to Accept Spain

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 27 (AP).—The U. N. Special Political Committee today rebuffed a Soviet bloc move to delay action on a resolution partly removing U. N. bars against Franco Spain.

Guatemala joined the five Russian-bloc countries in support of a Polish motion to postpone further debate on Franco Spain until Monday. Thirty-four countries were against and six abstained.

The United States is backing an eight-power resolution which would permit U. N. members to send back to Madrid their top ambassadors and ministers and would open the way for Generalissimo Franco to join specialized agencies of the U. N.

The resolution has the effect of revoking an Assembly resolution of 1946 on ambassadors and specialized agencies, but it does not touch another Assembly resolution, approved at the first U. N. meeting in London in 1946, barring Franco Spain from U. N. membership. Bolivia, Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, the Philippines and Peru introduced the resolution and backed it strongly in opening debate today.

Chile, meanwhile, sounded a call in the 60-Nation political committee for the U. N. to condemn any Iron Curtain anywhere in the world that stands against peace and furthering of information. Chile obviously was hitting directly at the Soviet Union.

Jacobo Schaulsohn of Chile introduced the proposal as an amendment to a six-country resolution which would define aggression as the gravest crime against humanity. Schaulsohn proposed that the Assembly stand out for "the free exchange of information and ideas as one of the bases of good neighborly relations between peoples."

His proposal defined as propaganda against peace any measure which tends to isolate a people from contact with the outside world, "preventing the press, radio, and other media of communication from reporting international events, hampering knowledge and preventing understanding between" peoples.

Germans Drive for Left Unity

BERLIN, Oct. 27 (NYHT).—Communist leaders here today announced a new campaign to bring about "unity of action" between Socialist and Communist workers in western Germany in order to oppose Western defense plans.

The Communist newspaper Neues Deutschland reported that 600 Social Democratic Party and trade union officials had attended a conference last Sunday at an undisclosed place in the Soviet zone. None of these officials was named.

The paper said there were also 150 representatives of Christian and independent trade unions and 400 West German Communists. The conference was addressed by Wilhelm Pieck and Otto Grotewohl, President and Prime Minister, respectively, of the East German state.

A spokesman for the Berlin Social Democratic Party said he did not believe any genuine leaders of his party in western Germany took part and that those referred to were dissidents who had been ousted from the party for their pro-Communist attitude.

West Germany Approves 10,000-Man Police Unit

BONN, Germany, Oct. 27 (U.P.)—West German federal and state officials tonight approved the creation of a quasi-federal police force of 10,000 men to be used in event of future internal emergency.

The police force will be controlled by the states except in emergencies, when the federal government will take over. It is expected to deal with Communist disorders from within.

refer it to the next meeting of the foreign ministers, officials said.

American leaders would like to see an agreement on the formation of the Western European armed force plus at least an acceptance in principle of the question of inclusion of Germans under proper safeguards. They do not like the introduction of the somewhat nebulous French plan into the negotiations at this time.

British circles here and press dispatches from London indicate that Britain also is opposed to acceptance of the French terms for giving arms to Germany, though feeling that it should be thoroughly studied. Many Paris newspapers, the United Press reported yesterday, expressed skepticism that anything will come of the Pleven plan, that Britain and the United States will turn it down.

One prospect was that the defense ministers might simply approve the military committee's plan for setting up the Western European force and respective contributions of the 12 NATO powers and defer any action on inclusion of Germans until later. A French Embassy spokesman said Moch's statement yesterday did not preclude his willingness to go ahead on this basis now.

Whether the United States would agree without some assurance of inclusion of the German divisions considered necessary for success of the whole effort is not clear. We, of course, would still have the high cards of arms aid to force a latter acceptance of some German contribution.

The defense ministers open their meetings this morning at 10 a. m. in the Interdepartmental Auditorium. General Eisenhower is to see Secretary of the Army Frank Pace at the Pentagon at the same time.

While there appeared to be general sentiment for Eisenhower, a Defense Department spokesman denied a published report that the North Atlantic military chiefs had unanimously voted for the American general at their meeting concluded Thursday. The question of the identity of the supreme commander was not before them, it was said.

In talking to newsmen yesterday, Eisenhower said that if called to the job, he will respond with an all-out effort.

"Words of statesmen must have strength behind them to carry any weight," he said. "If paper plans are to be transferred to real strength, we must work hard."

On the subject of arming Germany, Ike spoke cautiously. He said he favored getting as much armed strength from Germany as possible "consistent with French fears."

Union, Navy in Music Battle

orchestra, about 15 of whom also are members of the musicians' union, contend they are not paid for their purely voluntary efforts, and therefore do not compete with anyone, in violation of the law.

The commanding officer of the Potomac River Naval Command, which has jurisdiction over the Navy Band Orchestra, in which Rosenthal plays violin, has written Local 161 that Rosenthal is not violating the law.

The executive board of Local 161 has written the symphony association that unless it sees fit to dispense with Rosenthal's services, the local may be forced to prohibit its 15 members from playing.

Paul J. Schwarz, president of the local, said the nine-man executive board feels that "the point in question is that Rosenthal's participation is a violation of the law of the United States."

Since Rosenthal received an honorarium, according to one orchestra official, of $150 last year when he appeared as a guest conductor, Schwarz says there is also the question of remuneration involved.

Rosenthal says he has declined to consider any pay for conducting the orchestra, that he and the musicians do it "purely for pleasure and relaxation," and that the work is "purely amateur."

Sergt. First Class Gilbert Mitchell, a trumpeter with the Army Band, who also plays in the orchestra, is the chairman of a three-man committee which represents the orchestra before the Arlington Civic Symphony Orchestra Association.

The orchestra membership voted "overwhelmingly" Thursday night in favor of continuing Rosenthal as conductor, "notwithstanding any action of Union Local 161," Mitchell said.

"Perhaps the union doesn't have the full story," Mitchell added. He said his committee will meet with the directors of the association next week to draft a letter to the local, explaining the orchestra's vote and offering to send a representative to be heard by the local.

The local's executive board will meet at 11 a. m. today to discuss the question, he said.

Chinese May Be Paying Debt

private intelligence sources since have said were correct, were to the effect that about 75,000 Chinese Communist soldiers escaped by fleeing south across the Yalu River into North Korea.

There, the reports go, they were fed and housed through the winter by North Korean Reds, and the next spring bounced back into Manchuria to ultimate victory.

The Chinese Reds thus would owe a tremendous debt to the Korean Reds—a debt not only of gratitude but a material debt, and one involving Oriental "face" in its fullest degree.

The second key to the situation has to do with the greatest electric power dam in all Asia—on the Yalu River. It is at Suiho (Supung), 40 miles up the river from Antung, Manchuria, and 50 miles downstream from the spot where Korean Republican troops briefly touched the border.

That dam was built by the Japanese to produce an estimated 630,000 kilowatts of electricity—a huge amount—of which an estimated 360,000 kilowatts go to Manchuria, the remainder to North Korea.

The industry of Manchuria, despite the stripping done by Russian occupation forces in 1945, is the chief hope of the Chinese Reds to make their regime a going, stable concern.

As the Korean Republic's Second Corps commander commented Friday "if we get that (the dam and its generators), Manchuria has no electricity."

From the Chinese Red point of view, the threat to that power source might have swung the balance to a decision to get into the Korean conflict, though still not as open participants.

A Chinese prisoner yesterday told Associated Press Correspondent William Jorden that he was a former Chinese Nationalist soldier. After four years in Chiang Kai-Shek's army, he entered the Chinese Red army in 1948.

He said most of his companions—he estimated them at 40,000—also were former Chinese Nationalists.

The Reds might well have concluded that these soldiers were unreliable by Communist ideological standards. What more logical than to send these expendables into Korea?

They might not fight as aggressively as desired, but the North Koreans never could say the Chinese Reds failed to pay a debt.

Even if they could not hope to win victory in Korea, such unenthusiastic Chinese troops might keep the North in prolonged turmoil and hold the Allies away from the south buttresses of that vital Suiho dam and from all the rich border region.

From the Communist view, it would make sense.

India Reported Warning Reds

a movement that would lead to full membership for them. But now a new element has entered the situation.

Diplomatic reports from New Delhi have emphasized the Indian government so far has received no positive confirmation of reports of a Chinese Communist incursion into Tibet.

But the action of Prime Minister Nehru in asking his Peiping ambassador to express "surprise and regret" over the reports was interpreted as an indication the Indian government believes an invasion is on.

Will Support France Move

Indian officials often have pointed out it is their government's policy to recognize any de facto government so long as it does not display "aggressive intentions."

This approach was underlined today when Sir Benegal Rau revealed India would vote for an eight-nation resolution to rescind the U.N.'s 1946 resolution against the Spanish regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Other U. N. developments:

1. American officials said Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik has agreed to ask the Kremlin what it thinks about the seven-point American blueprint for a Japanese peace treaty. The blueprint was outlined to Malik last night by American Delegate John Foster Dulles, who reportedly argued Japan eventually must have some armed forces if it is not to be a permanent burden on the United States and other nations.

2. Poland has protested to Secretary-General Trygve Lie against the inability of a Polish correspondent, Stanislaw Brodski, to get a visa to come here and report the Assembly session.

India Takes Grave View Of Reported Red Invasion

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 27 (U.P.). Prime Minister Nehru's government announced today it takes a grave view of the reported Chinese Communist invasion of Tibet and has expressed its "surprise and regret at this development" to the Peiping regime.

Nehru called an urgent cabinet meeting to consider the situation and possibility of further action. The government was reluctant to believe reports the Reds had at last launched their long-threatened invasion of the Himalayan theocracy and posed a distinct threat to India's security.

Appliance sales were hit mostly, store officials said, with other high-priced merchandise also suffering.

"We're in a breath-catching period," said one store executive, "between the over-buying of the scare period and the coming holiday season. But with the public having its biggest disposable income in history, sales should start rising soon."

One On the Aisle

Best Vaudeville In a Long Time

By Richard L. Coe

THE CAPITOL'S STAGE bill is a grand one, best vaudeville the town's seen in a long while.

Dick Haymes, Eileen "Bake-a-Cake" Barton and the Three Stooges form the backbone of the bill. Though two are singers, their styles are quite different and the funny boys of a thousand comedy shorts are swell.

Little Miss Barton's hit with her audience is an interesting thing to watch. Fundamentally she's a girl with a voice, and there must be hundreds just like her. I think I've seen that many at least on the Capitol stage. But with the wild vogue for her "If I'd Known You Were Coming, I'd Bake a Cake" giving her a passkey, she manages to seem a bit different from her sisters. She seems to have found that thing called personality and her songs fit her individual style. She's got a new one that should make a pretty good record, "I Met Him at One o'Clock," she does some nice business with Sam Jack Kaufman for "Baby Me" and the night crowd I caught her with acted as though it had never heard "Yuckapuck" before. Her record fans will like Eileen.

Headliner Haymes is a fellow I've never liked in the movies as much as most people have, but on the stage he proves an easy, stalwart singer. He's got a good presence as well as that voice everyone likes so much. Among his numbers are "Somebody Loves Me," "Count Every Star," "Sam's Song," "Mona Lisa," "All-American Rainbow" and a nice "Old Man River."

The Stooges—Moe Shemp and Larry, but don't ask me to tell you which is which—have a vaudeville act that's got a swell start. You know what to expect when they're announced, but you don't get the tramps; the boys come on in top hats and tails and after a reasonably polished ditty drop their elegance for the broad humor. They're real crowd catchers.

The task of getting people settled in their seats for this triple influx is assigned Perry Franks and Janyce, a dance duo, hep and peppery.

It's too bad every stage bill can't have three such acts as the ones we're getting this week. I'm not saying they're sensational, but they know exactly how to deliver the goods. Which is what counts.

THE PICTURE is notable for the fact that it presents some people's favorite dramatic star, Yvonne DeCarlo. This trip finds Miss DeCarlo in Iran hobnobbing with people named Omar, Alladin, Prince Murad, Yasmin, Sinbad, Kibar, Samad and Maznah.

It's called "The Desert Hawk" and Richard Greene is it, or rather he, Omar, a blacksmith who protects the pop from the cru-el, wick-ed Prince Murad, George Macready.

Needless to say, Miss DeCarlo is given every opportunity to display her loins AND in Technicolor. Her loins is just wonderful, though she still doesn't sound so good. I bar Miss DeCarlo has operatic ambitions and hate to think how Universal-International will struggle along without her. If she's really serious about this singing career, I want my "Lakme" tickets right now.

Anyway, "The Desert Hawk" is about what you'd expect.

"THE DESERT HAWK," a Universal release, produced by Leonard Goldstein, directed by Frederick de Cordova, screenplay by Aubrey Wisberg, Jack Pollexfen and Gerald Drayson Adams. At the Capitol.

'The Astonished Heart' Has Not Improved With Padding

DESPERATE, one of Noel Coward's favorite words, is, I fear, the only word for "The Astonished Heart," which has arrived on the Plaza screen with Coward, Celia Johnson and Margaret Leighton in the leads.

Desperately misplaced, for instance, is the gallantry whereby Coward took over the leading role when, after some days of shooting, Michael Redgrave decided he wasn't right for the part. Frankly, Coward isn't, either, nor is the part too right to start with.

To start with, this was the weakest of all the "Tonight at 8:30" playlets and therefor, I've an idea, its creator's favorite child. Its first tryout performance at the National some 13 years ago was marred by a too-anxious electrician, who doused the glimmers at the suicidal moment.

The suicidal moment is part of the plot. A distinguished Belgrave Square psychiatrist has been making a mess of his life by playing about with a selfish blonde. His patient wife suggests the two try a trip together, during the course of which the mind doctor sees what a shallow flirt he's dallying with.

Dallying with psychiatry has since become a favorite movie device, which further mitigates against the little playlet that was well ahead of the current parade. It was a neat idea, I suppose, this physician who could not heal himself, but it's no better a movie than it was a playlet. However, in making his own adaptation, Coward has at least been resourceful.

Resourceful is the word for a screen play which can spin an hour-and-a-half running time from a half-hour playlet and Writer Coward has kept the camera moving. Some of the Coward lines sparkle, which means that anyone fond of Coward dialogue will find some pleasure in this. But others of the lines are pat and, in their delivery monotone, flat. How the two people drift together is shrewdly developed and surely, the approach is adult.

Adult is hardly the word, though, for the doctor's way out, suicide. It and the emotionless playing do not add up to the best Coward. "Brief Encounter" made a fine feature film from a "Tonight at 8:30" playlet, but as I've said, "The Astonished Heart" never was in the same league.

In the same league—fashionable—is the Plaza's short subject, "The Christian Dior Story," which, unless you're hep to high life, might suggest Negro and martyrs. It's a visit to the Frenchman who's so cowed the fashion world, his atelier and his creations. The ladies probably will find this as admirable as the classy wardrobe Miss Leighton sports, via Capt. Molyneux for Coward's ultimate downfall. R. L. C.

'The Toast of New Orleans' Is Loud, If Not Quite Good

By Orval Hopkins

THE LATEST M-G-M musical extravaganza is called "The Toast of New Orleans." It is compared in some places to the firm's "Annie Get Your Gun," "Three Little Words," "The Duchess of Idaho" and "Summer Stock." The film is a bush job compared to the first two and is in the class of the third only in a rough sort of way. I haven't had the pleasure of "Summer Stock," but from the reports in the papers you'd have to say it, too, is too fast for the entry at the Palace.

Kathryn Grayson, Mario Lanza and David Niven are starred in the picture, with J. Carroll Naish as hard-working, if sadly hobbled, comedy relief. It's in Technicolor.

The story is about the impresario (Niven) who wends into the sticks, for a completely foggy reason, packing his star soprano (Miss Grayson) with him. There they discover, it doggedly follows, a carefree young fisherman (Lanza) yodeling at the top of his lungs, mesmerizing the girls and generally being a very large frog.

"Cripes," mutters Niven, in his clipped British accent. "Wotta voice." Next darn thing, Mario is in New Orleans yodeling at the top of his lungs, mesmerizing the girls and generally being a very large pain.

After endless opera, vocalizing, embarrassing public exhibitions of doleful Niven attitudes, and Naish shouting "Bah!" Lanza and Miss Grayson solve everything and off they go, singing happily through, presumably, eternity.

THE LANZA TENOR is something I'm unequipped to judge technically. It's certainly loud, and the Lanza high note is certainly high. When he throws his high one, Mario looks as if he's going to pop a gasket.

When Miss Grayson throws her high one, also of considerable altitude, she appears about to fade away. Niven wears a disturbed look throughout, as though he wondered how he got into this at all. Naish is quite at home in his part as Lanza's uncle, but the jokes he is given to deliver are a sad supply.

The songs, by Nicholas Brodszky and Sammy Cahn, include "The Toast of New Orleans," "Tina Lina," "Be My Love," "I'll Never Love You," and some others, plus numberless arias and snatches thereof. There's so much singing, in fact, that the plot, already suffering acute anemia, can scarcely get along. The original songs are directly, I'm afraid, off the cob.

"THE TOAST OF NEW ORLEANS," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, produced by Joe Pasternak, directed by Norman Taurog, screenplay by Sy Gomberg and George Wells.

Preaching Mission Starts Sunday

Washington area churchgoers are in for a diet of revitalization next week.

They are the chief target of the Preaching Mission which brings 30 nationally known American and Canadian religious leaders to the Capital.

In six days, the visitors will fill more than 300 speaking engagements with their mission "to raise the spiritual level of the total community."

Three hundred and nine Protestant churches with an adult membership of more than 125,000 persons are cooperating in the project, the most ambitious ever sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches. It is also the largest number of churches ever to cooperate on any local project.

Preceded by Prayer

Many churches are approaching the event with all-night prayer sessions. Typical is the Beverly Hills Evangelical and United Brethren Church, Alexandria, which begins a vigil of prayer at noon today, through noon Sunday. The Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church, Rhode Island ave. and 1st st. nw. will follow the same schedule.

Mt. Carmel Baptist Church, 3rd and I sts. nw., begins its 24-hour prayer vigil at 8 a. m. today. All of the participating churches in Alexandria, and many in the District will be lighted all night for prayer.

Prayer groups have also been formed by many churches. Among them is the Church of the Brethren which will hold a prayer vigil for 12 hours on Capitol Hill starting at 8 a. m. today.

The opening event of the mission will be a Reformation Day rally at 8 p. m. in Uline Arena Sunday to be addressed by the Rev. Robert J. McCracken, of Riverside Church, New York City. Ten thousand persons are expected to attend.

More than 2500 churchmen and laymen in the area have served on committees which started planning the event 10 months ago.

Special lecturers during the week will be: Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, Christ Methodist Church, New York City; Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, Fifth Presbyterian Church, New York City; Dr. Margaret Tyson Applegarth, World Council of Churches; Dr. George D. Kelsey, associate executive secretary in field administration, Federal Council of Churches; Mrs. Harper Sibley, president of the United Council of Church Women, and Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, vice president of the Federal Council of Churches.

Bible lecturers will be: Dr. Myrddyn W. Jones, Christian Church, Waynesboro, Pa.; Dr. Montgomery J. Shroyer, Westminster Theological Seminary, Westminster, Md.; Dr. Chester W. Quimby, University of Cornell; Mrs. Jessie Burrall Eubank, assistant to the pastor, National Baptist Memorial Church; Dr. Harvey Daniel Hoover, Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., and Mrs. J. M. Dawson, First Baptist Church.

Britons Deny Bible Holds Proof Of Assumption

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Protestant Alliance promised Pope Pius XII today to embrace the Roman Catholic faith if he could prove by the Bible the bodily assumption of the Virgin Mary.

The Pope on November 1 will proclaim the new Catholic dogma that the mother of Christ ascended physically as well as spiritually to heaven. The proposed new dogma has drawn sharply edged criticism from leading church men of the Church of England in Britain.

The Alliance, one of the oldest Protestant church societies in Britain, wrote a letter to the Pope that made no attempt to gloss over its uncompromising opposition.

The Alliance said there was no proof of the new doctrine in the Bible, that there is no trace of it in the history of the Christian church for the first six centuries, and that it is not mentioned in the three early creeds of the Catholic Church.

Family Rally Expected to Draw 10,000

The Holy Year family rally in honor of Christ the King is expected to draw 10,000 persons to Catholic University Stadium Sunday.

Delegations from every Roman Catholic parish, school and organization in the Archdiocese are expected to attend the rally at 3 p. m.

Among those who will participate are the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, and his two auxiliary bishops, the Most Rev. John M. McNamara and the Most Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of Catholic University. In case of inclement weather the rally will be held in the Catholic University gym.

A procession into the stadium will be led by the massed colors of the District of Columbia Department, Catholic War Veterans, commanded by Edward S. J. Peters, department commander of the CWV. Cadets from St. John's High School and the Georgetown University ROTC and members of the Washington General Assembly, Fourth (patriotic) Degree, Knights of Columbus, will act as a guard of honor.

The rally will be under the auspices of the Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies, of which the Rev. Joseph M. Moran, pastor of St. Thomas' Church, is spiritual director.

The sermon will be preached by the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., dean of the school of philosophy at Catholic University. Another well known Dominican priest, the Very Rev. Harry C. Graham, O. P., of New York, will lead in the recital of the Holy Name pledge by men attending the rally.

Newsman in Preacher's Role

Earl Godwin, dean of Washington news commentators, enters a bit different medium Sunday as guest speaker at the 11 a. m. service of Georgetown Lutheran Church, Wisconsin ave. and Volta pl. nw. The NBC newsman's topic is, "In God We Trust. Why Not Cash In on It?" Godwin says we are fighting a last-ditch battle with communism and materialism, both at home and abroad, and our greatest ally, God, is rarely called into any of our councils . . . A boon to ministers and lay leaders alike is the new "Oxford American Prayer Book," published this week. Written by the Rev. Massey H. Shepherd, jr., of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, it is a historical, liturgical, detailed and theological commentary in nontechnical language . . . Former displaced persons will be guests of honor at World Community Day celebrations Friday both locally and nationally . . . The Rev. Thomas B. Keehn, former legislative secretary of the Congregational Christian Council for Social Action here, has been appointed executive secretary of the Committee on Technical Assistance established this fall by the Foreign Missions Conference of North America.

Over a million pounds of relief materials are being distributed by a Church World Service team now in Korea . . . His experiences in educational work in Germany will be related by Dr. Martin Moser, professor of government and politics at the University of Maryland, Sunday at 6 p. m. at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw. . . . A special service will mark the anniversary of the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde's rectorship at Grace Episcopal Church, 402 9th st. se., at 11 a. m. Sunday. The Rev. Henry H. Clement of St. Margaret's Church will be the guest preacher.

Many a local minister silently suffered and said a prayer for the Rev. Earl F. Fowler this week. The pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian Church was to introduce the renowned Japanese leader, Toyohiko Kagawa, to an audience at the First Congregational Church.

Dr. Fowler

At the appointed noon hour, 1600 persons were on hand, but the speaker was aboard a plane stacked up over National Airport—two hours late. Dr. Fowler began improvising. He told of Kagawa's past, present and possible future, interspersing his remarks with hymns. His job was done so suavely that fewer than 100 persons walked out. One hour later Kagawa, unmistakable in his shapeless black suit and dark-rimmed, heavy-lensed glasses, arrived. Undoubtedly Dr. Fowler never heard a more interesting talk.

The Rev. Albert P. Shirkey is finally the minister of the Mount Vernon Methodist Church, but for a while he didn't think he would make it. During the summer he was invited up for a guest sermon so members of the selection committee could give him the once-over.

"I listened to the music of the service," he recalls, "and had the feeling that the decision had already been made. The solo was, "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again."

But the pastor figured a way to get the idea across that he was wishing himself on the congregation for a long time. The title of his first evening sermon was, "Yesterday, Today and Forever."

The Rev. C. Stanley Lowell, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church, has an interesting piece in the current Christian Century on the growth of Reformation Sunday in a few years to "the great annual rallying day for all American Protestantism" . . . John Halko of the Federation of Churches guessed the free will offering for the noon Kagawa talk would be $750. He was 9 cents short . . . The Rev. Edward B. Lewis, pastor of Union Methodist Church, will attend a meeting of State directors of the Methodist Student Movement next week at Turkey Run Park, near Marshall, Ind.

Protestants To Celebrate Reformation

Protestant churches—both locally and nationally—will observe Reformation Sunday tomorrow, emphasizing their heritage from the Christian movement of the sixteenth Century.

Growing in importance during the last few years, the observance is conducted annually on the Sunday preceding October 31, the day of the year when Martin Luther nailed his 95 articles to the door of the church in Wittenberg. This event, and others stemming from it, touched off the Reformation.

For centuries the day was observed only among the Lutherans. Most of Protestantism has joined in noting the occasion by references in Sunday sermons and meetings throughout the country.

Eminent Rabbi To Serve New County Group

Dr. Francis Hevesi, formerly chief rabbi of Budapest, has been appointed first rabbi of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Jewish Community Group.

The rabbi was one of the foremost Jewish leaders prewar Europe. From 1933 to 1944, he was president of the Jewish Free University of Budapest.

In 1945, after Hungary was liberated, Rabbi Hevesi was appointed chief of chaplains of the Hungarian army, with the rank of major general. In this capacity, he consecrated the burial grounds established for American soldiers who died in Hungary.

He came to this country in 1946.

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Jewish Community Group plans to hold regular religious services at its home, 5 Edson lane, off the Rockville pike.

In another broadcast, the National Baptist Radio Hour will present the Rev. Robert F. McFarlane, evangelist, at 7:30 a. m. over WWDC. His topic will be, "The Christian and His Prayer."

Snyder Lauds Israel's Achievements So Far

Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder yesterday praised the State of Israel for its achievements in the little more than two years of its existence.

Snyder, who spoke at an afternoon session in the Statler Hotel of the National Planning Conference for Israel and Jewish Rehabilitation, said that "to every American the new state of Israel has been an inspiring example of the achievements which can be realized through the pioneering efforts of a free people determined to forge a strong nation."

The conference has been convened to consider American financial aid to the Jewish state. Israel will require $1,500,000,000 over a three-year period to provide for 600,000 new Jewish immigrants and strengthen the national economy, Eliezer Kaplan, finance minister, has told the conference.

Israel hopes that American Jews will provide, in contributions and investment capital, one billion dollars of this amount during the three-year period.

Benjamin G. Browdy, president of the Zionist Organization of America, yesterday urged the United States Government to make a $500,000,000 grant-in-aid over the next three years to Israel. "The $100,000,000 loan which was made to Israel by the Export-Import Bank is a loan and repayable," he said.

Browdy's plea for a grant-in-aid was supported by Representative Abraham J. Multer (D., N. Y.), who said "the need . . . cannot be disputed," and that it would strengthen the cause of democracy.

Multer also said that the Commerce Department has "recently issued export licenses for the shipment to the Arab states of tons upon tons of steel pipe for the purpose of building a new pipeline to bypass the Haifa refinery." The Congressman said that the Haifa refinery was now operating at less than a third of capacity largely "because the Arabs refuse to permit oil to be transported from Iraq to that refinery."

Declaring that there was no need for another pipeline at this time, Multer urged the conference to "protest" the Commerce Department's action.

Hoyas Collide With Villanova

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown and Villanova, both at the crossroads of their seasons, meet at Griffith Stadium 2 p. m. today in a game that promises to have all the impact of a head-on collision.

With both thrice-beaten, they can't afford to settle for anything less than victory. After all, the winner still will be able to carry hopes for redeeming a poorly-begun campaign.

Frank Mattingly

Today's contest is strictly a toss-up. Various quarters have attempted to make one or the other a one-touchdown favorite but it hasn't confused the issue. Last night's "official" line quoted Villanova a one-point choice.

Trying to guess at a crowd figure is equally pointless. When the Hoyas played Maryland, then rated the eighth team in the country, everybody expected at least 20,000. A disappointing turnout of 8869 was on hand.

Although today's game figures to be as close a college contest as anyone could hope for, the teams still will be bucking that murderous Saturday afternoon television lineup.

This has been a disappointing Villanova club to Coach Jim Leonard, the old Notre Damer, after a glorious 8-1 record last year, his first. Leonard has a flock of good boys and was optimistic before the season started. The team just hasn't jelled but it's well to remember that losses were inflicted by fourth-ranking Kentucky and eleventh-ranking Miami.

One boy who has lived up to expectations is Pete D'Alonzo, 210-pound bruising fullback, ninth leading rusher in the country. D'Alonzo, who's made Villanova forget about Ralph Pasquariello, has gained 514 yards in 85 tries.

Although they haven't shown much so far, Halfbacks Johnny Geppi and Mickey Frinzi are too good on their past records to remain bottled up permanently.

It looks like the Hoyas will have to stop a relentless ground game, with D'Alonzo the spearhead. Standouts in the Hoyas' defensive line include Guard Bill Orsini and Tackle Bob Noppinger. The latter played his best game in the B. C. triumph.

Haddiman Defensive Bulwark

Linebackers who should be in for a busy afternoon are Jim Slowey and Bill Fisher. Gino Pagliuica, fast-developing fullback, also may lend a hand on defense. Capt. Tommy Hardiman will direct the pass defenders. He set a good example for his men against B. C., stealing four passes.

Slick-passing Frank Mattingly will direct Georgetown's offense. It may take a bit of directing through a Villanova forward wall that includes Nick Liotta and Ray Mantone, a couple of tremendous 220-pound linemen.

Georgetown goes into the game seeking its first post-war triumph over the Main Liners from suburban Philadelphia. Reading backwards from 1949, they've been beaten, 29-14 35-7, 14-12 and 19-2.

Winless B. C. Beaten, 19-7, By Georgia

BOSTON, Oct. 27 (AP).—Billy Mixon's 86-yard scoring run broke up Boston College's determined fourth-period attack and provided undefeated Georgia with a 19-7 victory over the winless Eagles in the comparative privacy of a 9243 crowd tonight at Braves Field.

The Southern Bulldogs, thrice-tied in six starts, appeared in grave danger of being beaten by a point when the artful dodging Mixon zig-zagged to glory.

After spotting Georgia two second-period counters, on a 27-yard touchdown pass from Rap Prosperi to Zippy Morocco and Mal Cook's one-yard sneak into the end zone, Boston College finally got really rolling for the first time in its six games to date.

After penning Georgia all through the third period, the Eagles started from their 32 and, on the second play of the finale, Jack McKinnon completed a 30-yard scoring pass to Winger Mike Roarke.

Since Bob Walsten had missed one of the two Georgia conversions, the aroused Boston College forces had a chance for an upset victory.

But just when the Bull Dogs hopes were lowest, Mixon banged through his right side on what was intended to be a short-gainer, squirmed free and, reversing twice, carefully followed the wide-open path made by his deadly interferers.

Drake Loses To Detroit, 14-13

DETROIT, Oct. 27 (AP).—Quarterback John O'Connor of the University of Detroit banged over a pair of touchdowns in the last eight minutes of play to give the Titans a dramatic 14-13 decision over a hard-luck Drake University team here tonight.

O'Connor climaxed Detroit's uphill battle as he dove over from the one-foot line in the last 12 seconds of play to deadlock the score at 13-all. Sam Cipparone then booted his second placement of the night to clinch the win.

Drake's speedster Johnny Bright, currently ranked as the leading offensive star among the nation's collegiate players, gave the crowd a brilliant one-man show.

He picked up 212 of Drake's 298 yards, 139 of them via rushing and 73 on passes.

TOUCHDOWN BOUND—Halfback Steve Wadiak shakes off Quarterback Dave Shiver on the George Washington 10-yard line and completes a 95-yard touchdown run against the Colonials at Griffith Stadium last night. Wadiak's great run came on the first play of the fourth quarter. Earlier, he had scored another touchdown on a short plunge.

Wadiak Runs 95 Yards; Davis Passes For 3 Scores

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

South Carolina handed George Washington a 34-20 trimming last night at Griffith Stadium in the GW Homecoming game which started out as a scoring duel between Gamecock Steve Wadiak and Colonial Andy Davis, and ended in a wild fist fight between both squads.

Wadiak got off touchdown runs of one and 95 yards and passed 10 yards for a third score. Davis passed for all three GW touchdowns, and rolled up 297 yards on the ground and in the air.

The game ended and the fist swinging started on a Davis pass aimed at Charlie Jones in front of GW's bench. Gamecock Defender Tom Woodlee broke up the play by landing on Jones' back. Jones took a swipe at Woodlee and the fight was on.

An unidentified Carolina player took a poke at Jones, and an unidentified Gamecock player bravely tore into the whole GW team which was assembled by the Colonial bench.

The Colonials counterattacked and the whole Gamecock team joined the battle as did many of the 13,497 spectators. Coaches Bo Rowland of GW and Rex Enright of Carolina managed to break up the wild slugfest after five minutes, and both teams walked off the field.

Wadiak Breaks It Up

It was a tense, evenly matched ball game for three quarters, at which point the Gamecocks led, 14-7.

But Mr. Wadiak, a bullet-shaped 190-pound Chicagoan, built for speed, tore things wide open on the first play of the last period with his scintillating 95-yard touchdown run. And before it was over, Carolina had crammed in two more touchdowns and GW two.

Wadiak's great long-distance dash started as an ordinary crack at GW's right tackle. He bolted through, headed for the sideline, knocked down Mike Sileo who got in his way, with a smart stiff-arm, and was off to the races.

Dave Shiver tried to pick up the trail at midfield, and at the 10, launched a desperate dive. He managed to touch Wadiak's heel, but Steve didn't even slow up.

Andy Davis Scores

With his 297 yards, Andy Davis ran his three-year total offense record to 3351 yards. He passed Army's Glenn Davis among major college players in that department and ranks fourth behind only Frank Sinkwich, Red Grange and Tommy Harmon.

Carolina started the scoring with a 71-yard push early in the second quarter. Wadiak and his pile-driving halfback twin, Bishop Strickland, moved it to the one, and Strickland had the honor of scoring. Bill Killoy converted.

Just before intermission, Davis maneuvered the Colonials to a touchdown with a 14-yard pass to Bill Szanyi and a 15-yarder to Jim Kline who made an unbelievable diving shoestring catch after defender Dayard Pickett deflected the ball in the end zone. John Shullenbarger converted.

In the third quarter, Dick Balka, a soph quarterback transfer from Notre Dame, led a 74-yard Carolina scoring march with passes to Strickland and Wadiak, and Wadiak cracked the middle from the 1 for the score. Killoy converted.

Wadiak made it 21-7 with his 95-yard run. GW appeared ready to get back into the thick of it when Davis' passing and Bino Barreira's running moved them 53

Navy After Two in Row Against Penn

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27—A Navy team hopeful that it hit a winning stride in that victory over Southern California last weekend, moves into Franklin Field against Penn tomorrow in an all-out effort to put two good games together.

There is a loud, dissenting opinion, however. Penn, with its All-American backfield candidate, Francis (Reds) Bagnell, has been installed as an eight-point favorite over the Midshipmen.

Navy vs. Penn, a perennial Franklin Field sell-out that drew 70,000 fans in previous years, will fall short of that figure tomorrow. With the game being televised, a crowd of only 60,000 is expected.

The Navy squad moved into Philadelphia tonight following a final practice under the lights at Annapolis. Coach Eddie Erdelatz was stressing defense against Penn's single-wing formations with the versatile Bagnell at tailback, after junking the defenses used last week against Southern Cal's T and double-wing attacks.

Erdelatz himself confessed a curiosity about Navy's chances. "We were terrifically high last week for Southern Cal, and played good football," he said. "I hope that I am wrong about that, and that we were finally reaching our level."

The Midshipmen, physically, are in their finest condition of the season, with only two men on the injured list. They are Capt. Tom Bakke and Bob McDonald, regular ends, but there was no complaint about Navy's end play last week when Larry Treadwell and Bill Baldinger moved into the top spots.

Ted Kowski, No. 1 defensive center, who didn't get into the Trojans game because of a lamed leg, will be available against Penn tomorrow, and Erdelatz is relying heavily on him and backers-up Dave Bannerman and Bernie Botula to throttle Penn's ground attack.

Navy hopes its answer to the running-passing Bagnell, who set collegiate ground-gaining records against Dartmouth, will be its own Bob Zastrow. In addition to giving smart direction to the Middies' attack last week, Zastrow completed 12 of 18 passes and personally carried the ball on two touchdown plays.

The game will be watched also by two battalions of Midshipmen, numbering 1275, who will parade on the field at 1:15 p. m.

Pantos Paces Terp Frosh

North Carolina's frosh smashed over for two touchdowns in the final period last night, but Maryland's freshmen bounced back to take a 29-20 victory from its Southern Confererce foe.

Jimmy Pantos, slick ball-handling quarterback from Central High, passed for three of Maryland's touchdowns and scored a fourth on an end sweep. He also blocked one of the Tar Heel tries for a point after touchdown.

Maryland scored early in the second quarter with a 65-yard march topped off by Pantos' six-yard pass over the Carolina goal to Chester Hanulak.

Pantos heaved a 30-yard pass to Conrad Hemphill on the Carolina 10 and he scampered over.

In the third quarter, Tar Heel Quarterback Bob White went over from the one.

Tom Adler, Carolina fullback, tied the game up at 20-20 in the last quarter with a 21-yard run.

The next time the Terps got the ball George Albrecht caught Williams behind his own end zone for a safety. Pantos scored the clinching touchdown with a four-yard sweep from the two-yard line.

Pauline Betz Addie Easily Beats Gussie Moran, 6-1, 6-2

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Seldom flashing the form or the lace panties which brought her international acclaim from connoisseurs of tennis and lingerie, Miss Gussie Moran was beaten again last night by Mrs. Pauline Betz Addie.

Before about 1400 oglers and a dozen or so tennis fans at Uline Arena, Mrs. Addie polished off Gorgeous Gussie, 6—1, 6—2. It took exactly 46 minutes for Mrs. Addie, wife of a local sports columnist recently recalled to active Army service, to trim Gussie.

That was 13 minutes more than Pauline required to turn the trick in Madison Square Garden Thursday night when Promoter Bobby Riggs' crosscountry net exhibitions opened.

The troupe closes out its two-night stand at Uline's this evening with the same cast: Moran vs. Addie and Jack Kramer vs. Pancho Segura.

Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Ecuador defeated Jack Kramer for the second night in a row, 6—1, 5—7, 8—6. In the mixed doubles, Kramer and Moran defeated Segura and Addies in a one-set match, 7—5.

Mrs. Addie not only won last night's match with the greatest of ease, but she walked off with the sartorial championship also. The four-time former United States women's champ dazzled the small crowd, by wearing a fuschia-colored (editor's note: that's high class for pink) crew neck tennis sweater and zebra patern shorts, no less.

Gussie, who's getting about $75,000 for providing the opposition and looking trim in the tennis clothes she almost has on, wore a white silk tennis dress with an open neck-line trimmed in sequins. Whoops!

Only those who weren't concerned about the respective tennis ability of the two ladies noticed that Gussie wasn't wearing lace panties at all. Instead, she wore modest little white numbers also trimmed in sequins. They were noticeable only when she raised her statuesque form to serve.

As for the match, I'm told Miss Moran couldn't do anything about the perils of Pauline's tennis until way late in the second set when she won two games after Pauline had taken nine straight games.

Citadel Beats Presbyterian, 7-0

ORANGEBURG, S. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—A first-period touchdown by Rudy Willcox gave The Citadel a 7-0 football victory over a stubborn Presbyterian College team here today.

The Willcox touchdown—a five-yard sprint around his right end—was almost a gift to The Citadel. A short, quick kick by Presbyterian's Walter Gooch from his five was run back 20 yards from the 25 by Bobby Carter, Citadel safety man. Willcox scored on the next play and Don Davis converted.

Rocky Wins Close Brawl

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (U.P.)—Rocky Graziano, former middleweight champion, tonight roughed and slammed his way to a close but unanimous 10-round decision over Tony Janiro in their return bout before 10,461 at Madison Square Garden.

It was a brawl that wound up with both battlers falling through the ropes to the ring apron just before the final bell.

There wasn't a knockdown. Janiro was staggering about the ring on rubber legs in the sixth and eighth rounds.

Referee Ruby Goldstein and Judge Joe Agnello voted in unison on rounds. Both gave each fighter five rounds. However, Goldstein favored Graziano on points, 10 to 8; and Agnello favored Graziano, 7 to 6. Judge Arthur Schwartz scored six rounds for Rocky and four for Janiro. The United Press also favored Rocky, six points to four.

Terps Tackle Tough Duke At Durham

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 27.—Maryland, which has never beaten Duke, gets its seventh chance to hang up a victory against the Blue Devils here tomorrow.

It's a Southern Conference clash between Coach Jim Tatum's twice-beaten Terrapins and Coach Wallace Wade's once-beaten Blue Shirts.

A crowd of about 23,000 is expected to be in the stands for the 2 p. m. kickoff with a sunny day and the thermometer in the low seventies predicted.

Despite a 16-13 upset by the same N. C. State team which lost, 7-0, to Duke, the Old Liners opened a 6-point favorite over the Blue Devils last Monday. Since then, however, the odds have dropped and tonight it was an even-money ball game.

This observer, who was upset along with the Terps last Saturday by predicting a 27-0 success for Maryland over N. C. State, risks another guess, calling tomorrow's clash, Maryland 20, Duke 7.

In the teams' only two meetings since Jim Tatum moved in as football coach at College Park, the Terps heavily outstatisticked Duke each time, winning everything but the ball games which went to the Blue Devils, 19-7 and 13-12.

Tranen Scores in Closing Minutes but Roosevelt Tops Coolidge, 19-18

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

Point Try Missed After 49-Yd. Run

By Bill Gilbert

Halfback Arnie Tranen suffered a momentary mental lapse that resulted in a Roosevelt touchdown early in the fourth quarter but made a great comeback with a touchdown in the closing minutes on a 49-yard pass play only to see Coolidge drop a 19-18 Inter-high decision at Roosevelt by the margin of an extra point.

Tranen caught a pass from Bill McCoy on the Roosevelt 30, ran over a would-be tackler on the 20 and sped across the goal for a Colts' score that brought Coolidge to within one point of Roosevelt, 19-18.

Pat Padgett, with a chance to tie the score, was thrown out of bounds when he attempted to run over the conversion on an end sweep.

Tranen's lapse came with his team behind, 12-13. On fourth down on his own 17, Tranen dropped back into punt formation. Taking the pass from center, he started to punt, decided to pass, then tried to run. He was thrown for a 3-yard loss back to his own 14 and Roosevelt took over on downs.

On the next play, End Joe Loewe ran over for the score on a double reverse and end-around. Bill Smith's kick was wide and Roosevelt led, 19-12.

Coolidge took the game's opening kickoff and marched 73 yards to a touchdown. A pass from Bill Williams to Tranen for 33 yards culminated the drive. Lynn Leathery's kick was no good and Coolidge led, 6-0.

The Colts upped their margin to 12-0 midway through the next period. Fullback Allen Lowe went through center from the one to climax a 41-yard march. Bill McCoy was stopped at the one trying to rush the conversion.

A 75-yard drive netted the Rough Riders their first score. Tony Grimaldi, a 210-pound fullback, carried over from two yards out. On the last play of the first half, Bob Smithers kicked the conversion that was to provide the final margin of victory.

Roosevelt forged ahead, 13-12, in the opening minutes of the third quarter. Carroll Groomes, 5-foot 8-inch back, leaped high to grab a pass from Bill Smith in the Coolidge end zone.

THROUGH THE MIDDLE FOR A SCORE—Here is one of those holes you've heard so much about, you know, the kind big enough to drive a truck through. The fellow with the ball is Allen Lowe crashing for Coolidge's second touchdown against Roosevelt yesterday at Roosevelt. Roosevelt went on to win in an upset, 19-18

Anacostia Wins Over Chamberlain

Anacostia defeated a underdog Chamberlain, 19 to 7, in an Inter-high League football game yesterday at Anacostia, and remained in second place in Group I.

Although Bob Chatlin was held to only one touchdown, he was still the big wheel in the Indians' backfield as he reeled off one long gain after another.

Early in the 1rst quarter Chatlin scored on a 14-yard jaunt around the right end and kicked the extra point.

The Indians scored again in the second period after a Chamberlain punt was returned to the Colts' 32. An unnecessary roughness penalty put the ball on the 17. In two tries Chatlin carried to the 1. Big Don Kober smashed over for the tally.

The second half was returned 58 yards by Chatlin, but Anacostia couldn't score.

Midway in the third quarter, after Chatlin had sparked a drive of 50 yards, Jack Grimes went over from the one-foot line.

In the last quarter Quarterback Joe Kolley and his mates filled the air with passes for Chamberlain, completing five out of six for 40 yards. The last Kolley pass was good for 11 yards and a touchdown to Halfback Stan Rochinski. End Jim Wall's conversion ended the scoring.

Quantico Takes On Scranton

Terps Tackle Tough Duke

...more, produced the one-point Duke victory in 1948 with an 80-yard third quarter touchdown sprint. Cox is still here, better than ever.

He's currently the Nation's No. 2 man in total offense, having gained 1086 yards for the Dukes running and passing in five games. Helping Cox along with the Duke offense is Maryland-born halfback Tommy Powers of Cumberland, who scored six touchdowns against feeble Richmond last week, and end Ceep Youmans.

The Duke line is not on a par with last year's good forward wall and therein lies the difference in the two teams.

The Terps have a strong, practically veteran line led by All-American candidate Bobby Ward.

There's likely to be one offensive change for the Terps. Karney Scioscia, a junior, will probably replace Sophomore Ed Fullerton, who has a knee injury, at fullback.

Otherwise, Quarterback Jack Scarbath and Halfbacks Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski and Bob (the Brat) Shemonski will be at their usual stations.

—MORRIS SIEGEL.

Terp Booters Down Duke, 4-1

Maryland, defending Southern Conference soccer champ, defeated Duke 4-1, for its second league victory in a row at College Park yesterday.

Duke Captain Scott Wheaton, Stroudsburg, Pa., suffered a broken leg in the second period when he collided with Maryland Captain Jim Belt. He was taken to Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale.

Catholic U. Favored Over Mounts Today

EMMITSBURG, Md., Oct. 27. Catholic University's football team is enjoying a unique role. The Redbirds are topheavy favorites in tomorrow's contest against Mount St. Mary's here.

The Cardinals have defeated Bridgewater, 32-0, lost a close contest to Randolph-Macon, 26-21, and last week gained a surprising 13-13 tie with heavily favored Johns Hopkins.

The Mountaineers, on the other hand, have only a tie with Waynesburg against three losses.

Catholic is cheered by the fact that Center Bill Harahan and End Tony Pelerossi have recovered from injuries incurred in last week's fray. Both will be in the starting lineup tomorrow.

Howard Plays Shaw Today

Howard University entertains Shaw University in its annual homecoming game today at Howard Stadium.

Plagued by injuries, Howard has won only two in five starts and will be aiming for the .500 mark against the North Carolinians.

Shaw has lost five straight and has scored but 12 points while Howard has rolled up 169 points.

Howard to date has been potent on offense but fumbles and interceptions have played havoc. Last week against Smith Howard made 19 first downs and chalked up 246 yards on the ground. Smith was only able to make 4 first downs and 48 yards on the ground but the game ended 7-6, Howard. Today's kickoff is set for 2 p. m.

General Manager Mixup

Hamey Says He Stays Even If Pirates Get Branch Rickey

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Pirates of Pittsburgh apparently are set to sail after one of the richest prizes in baseball—Branch Rickey.

But the Bucs say they won't try to nab the Mahatma from the Gowanus until he's cut loose from his Brooklyn moorings tomorrow.

If, when and under what circumstances the Dodger front office wizard takes up residence at Forbes Field, a Pittsburgh official insists portly Roy Hamey still will be there as general manager.

Tom Johnson, Pirate secretary-treasurer, tried to set the spinning sports world straight on the Rickey-to-Pittsburgh rumors today with this resume of the situation:

"I do not believe John Galbreath (president of the Pittsburgh club) has officially talked business with Rickey as yet. Since Rickey's contract with Brooklyn does not expire until tomorrow, it would not exactly be cricket.

"But I assume John will contact Rickey after tomorrow and attempt to arrange mutually satisfactory terms for his coming here.

"I do not know what his capacity would be.

GW Jayvees Win Over Potomac

KEYSER, W. Va., Oct. 27 (AP). A blocked pass in the end zone, a snagged free ball, a 102-yard run with a lateral thrown in all in one play in the last few minutes broke Potomac State's six-game winning streak today, 22 to 19, at the hands of George Washington's Jayvees.

Potomac's Catamounts were leading 19 to 16 with time running out when Kenny Belliveau, GW halfback, deflected Ted Lauer's pass intended for Cecil Perkins in the GW end zone.

The ball bounded into the arms of the young Colonials' Center Korcheck, who ran out to the 15, then lateraled to Bill Fox who sprinted 85 yards for the winning touchdown.

Ben Colandreo Leads Tech Over Gonzaga

McKinley Tech held Gonzaga High to three first downs as the Trainers romped, 25-0, yesterday at McKinley. Gonzaga was in Tech territory only twice during the game.

Benny Colandreo led the Trainer ground attack, scoring on runs of 62 and 5 yards. Fullback John Wege passed to Stan Kernan for 20 yards, and plunged from the 1. Bryant Hopkins converted after the first touchdown.

Gonzaga's only scoring chance was nullified by a penalty late in the fourth quarter. Bill Cody passed to quarterback Bill Lucas but a back-in-motion penalty nullified the play.

Misses Miss Bussing at Arizona

An Athlete Has No Greater Love Than to Give Up Kissing for Coach

TUCSON, Oct. 27 (AP).—J. F. (Pop) McKale, athletic director at the University of Arizona, put his popularity to an extreme test.

He told members of the athletic "A" Club they would either have to quit kissing unwary coeds on Initiation Day or do without him as their faculty adviser.

For years initiates of the lettermen's club have bussed practically all the women they meet on the campus on Initiation Day.

"It's me or the girls," he told the athletes. "Either no more kissing or no more advice."

Yesterday was Initation Day. The girls went unkissed.

S. Carolina Beats GW

yards to Carolina's 10. A Davis to Butler pass clicked for a touchdown. When Shullenbarger's placement was low, the Colonials trailed, 21-13.

Carolina moved the game beyond GW's reach moments later when Barreira let a Davis pass get away on the GW 17 and tackle Harry Stewart recovered for the Gamecocks. Five plays later, quarterback Ed Pasky scored from the one.

The eager-beaver Woodlee who was in the middle when the fight started later, set up the fifth Carolina score when he stole a Davis pass out of Charlie Butler's mitts, and returned it 30 yards to GW's 10. Wadiak, in a new role, took a pitchout from Pasky and passed to Strickland for a touchdown.

GW went down fighting with a touchdown in the last three minutes with Davis hurling the Colonials 64 yards to Carolina's 11. There the Davis to Butler touchdown pass combination worked again.

Shullenbarger converted, and if the scoring was over, the action wasn't.

The loss gave GW. a 3-3 season's record, compared to 3-1-1 for the Gamecocks.

17,000 May See Le Baron Here Tonight

Unbeaten, untied Scranton University offers formidable opposition for the high-flying Quantico Marines 8 o'clock tonight in Alexandria's George Washington High Stadium.

Lured by the magic names of Quantico's Eddie LeBaron, Hosea Rodgers and Bill Hawkins and spurred by Alexandria's energetic Chamber of Commerce, a capacity crowd of 17,000 won't be surprising.

Scranton has bowled over four opponents with its most notable triumph a 20-7 decision over Lafayette. Fordham squeezed by Lafayette by only a point and Cornell won by 27-0.

The boys from Pennsylvania's anthracite region year in and year out field a tough club that just never attracts the attention it deserves. You can bet they'll be bearing down for a win over Quantico's "name" players.

Generally using only about 20 men, Scranton's backfield is led by triple-threat Quarterback Dan Shea; Halfbacks Bill Newman and Paul Burak and Fullback Pete Mondati.

Apparently this means that famed College of Pacific star LeBaron will have to pass for keeps if the Marines are to take their sixth in a row. Quantico's record is replete with lop-sided scores and LeBaron has been content to let his host of hard-running backs carry the ball. He has taken time to complete 31 of 61 pass attempts for 483 yards.

Aunt Jinny Heads Field of 11 for Laurel's $50,000 Selima Today

Atalanta, Vulcania Also Run

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

LAUREL, Oct. 27.—Duval A. Headley's Aunt Jinny, recent winner of the Demoiselle Stakes, heads a banner field of 11 2-year-old fillies named overnight for the twenty-fifth running of the Selima Stakes here tomorrow.

The race, a mile and a sixteenth, will gross $50,270 if all 11 go to the post and the winner's share will be $38,370.

Aunt Jinny will carry 122 pounds to be topweight of the field and arrayed against her will be Brookmeade Stable's Atalanta, 119 and Two Rainbows, 116; Belair Stud's Vulcania, 119; Foxcatcher Farm's Rose Fern, 119; E. B. Benjamin's Signal, 119; Watson Elliott's Nina Rose, 119; W. L. Brann's Mystic, 119; Brookfield Farm's Inanabout, 119; George D. Widener's Blue Moon, 116, and Greentree Stable's Toto, 116.

Jinny Won Over Vulcania

In some respects the Selima will be a re-running of the Demoiselle since the first five horses to finish in that Jamaica stake are in the lineup here. Aunt Jinny was the winner on that occasion with Vulcania second, Rose Fern third, Toto fourth and Atalanta fifth.

The Demoiselle was Aunt Jinny's first stake score while Vulcania, Rose Fern and Toto will be seeking their first such triumph. Atalanta prior to the Demoiselle, had won the Matron, Spinaway and Schuylerville.

The latter's running mate, Two Rainbows, after finishing third in two stakes, has won two races at this meeting.

Wall Rides Jinny

Victory for any of the others would come as something of a surprise since they have no stakes performances to date indicating ability to match the others but their connections must have faith in them.

Riding assignments for the race find Nick Wall on Aunt Jinny, Warren Mehrtens on Blue Moon, Mike Basile on Signal, Eric Guerin on Rose Fern, Bobby Bernhardt on Vulcania, Nick Combest on Toto, Arnold Kirkland on Mystic, Bobbie Strange on Inanabout, Ronnie Nash on Atalanta and R. J. Martin on Two Rainbows.

Last year the Selima was won by Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Bed O' Roses

DEAR FOLKS:

Larry Lalli, Oklahoman who holds the contract on Jockey Frank Bone, is visiting here and says the boy in all likelihood will ride in Florida. Lalli and Bone are co-owners of an Oklahoma ranch. Bobby Bernhardt, a Laurel boy and one of my favorite riders, will be in action on the weekend program, having come down from New York. Trainer D. B. Midkiff, conditioner for Circle M Farm, isn't exactly happy. He had Greek Pass shipped from Kentucky for the Selima Stakes only to discover that someone in the organization had failed to make one of the nomination payments. High Trend, winner of last Friday's feature, can be stamped as a horse who likes the Laurel track. He won the Washington Handicap here last year. Best Saturday program of the season. See you on the rail.

2 Who Fled Auto Crash Scene Freed Of Blame

Driver's Arrest On Spot Ruled Sufficient Notice Of Felonious Act

Charges of compounding the felony of manslaughter were dismissed in Municipal Court yesterday in the cases of two passengers who fled from a car that killed a pedestrian Tuesday.

Free under the ruling of Judge George D. Neilson were Julius A. Hopkins, 31, 48 H st. ne., and Jazell Moon, 27, 617 Elliott st. ne.

They were in a car driven by Hilliard R. Johnson, 33, 1014 4th st. nw., when it crashed through two barricades at North Capitol and H sts., and killed Albert A. Harris, 54, a Water Department employe.

Under a rarely used statute, Hopkins and Moon were arrested at the coroner's inquest Wednesday, after police testified they ran from the scene after Harris was killed.

The statute provides that it is compounding a felony to fail "to notify officers of the court or of the law of a felony in cases where said officers are not cognizant of how the felony happened."

At their arraignment yesterday, their attorney, William B. Bryant, argued that the immediate on-the-scene arrest of Johnson made police cognizant of how the felony happened.

Judge Neilson agreed and dismissed the charges.

Jockey's Son Hurt in Fall From Tractor

Eric Kirkland, four-year-old son of Arnold Kirkland, a jockey, was severely injured yesterday when thrown under a tractor.

Montgomery County police said the boy was riding on the running board of the tractor, which James Kirk, 11, son of Carson Kirk, another jockey, was operating on the Kirk farm at Fairland, Md., collecting corn in a wagon.

When William M. Thomas, 23, shouted to James to move on, the tractor jerked ahead, police said, and the Kirkland boy fell. He was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring with internal injuries.

Kirkland was riding at Laurel but cancelled all of his rides after the first race, when he was told of the accident.

In Washington three persons were injured early yesterday when an automobile crashed into a Fire Department rescue squad car at 7th and D sts. nw., after police said the three occupants fled from a bar where one is believed to have tossed a tear-gas bomb.

Treated at Emergency Hospital was Pvt. William H. Steuart, 37, of 4026 2d st. sw., driver of the squad car. Another fireman, Lieut. R. K. Thomas, 52, suffered cuts.

One of the three men in the fleeing auto, Raymond J. Daggett, 30, a one-armed war veteran, of 931 N. Kenmore st., Arlington, Va., was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts and a leg injury.

The accident happened at 12:30 a. m., as Rescue Squad No. 1 was speeding to an accidental alarm at the Acacia Building ,51 Louisiana ave. nw.

The men in the auto were racing, with another auto in pursuit, from the Jo-Del Bar and Grill, 719 9th st. nw., where a tear-gas bomb had been thrown through the doorway a few minutes earlier, police said.

Driver, Joseph M. Coffey, 23, of 685 Arlington Village, Arlington, Va., was charged with speeding and failing to yield the right of way to an emergency vehicle. In Traffic Court his case was continued to November 10.

2 Neighbors Rescue Woman Badly Burned in Home Fire

A 49-year-old Fairlington woman was critically burned early yesterday despite the effort of two neighbors who rescued her from her blazing apartment.

Mrs. Frank M. Farmer of 2979 S. Columbus st., who suffered first, second and third degree burns over 75 percent of her body, was fighting for her life last night at Arlington Hospital.

Ralph Whitener, 31, of 2992 S. Columbus st., one of the two men who dragged her from the flaming second story of her brick duplex apartment, gave this account to reporters:

Shortly after 3 a. m., his wife, Alice, awakened him and said: "There's a man in the yard across the street yelling, 'Help me, help me!'"

Whitner slipped into some clothes, grabbed a flashlight and raced across the street where Mrs. Farmer's husband, Joseph J. Farmer, in shirt and undershorts, was crying: "Frank's in there, Frank's in there."

Flames were spewing "4 or 5 feet out of the upstairs windows," Whitner said later.

"I don't like fires, but there was somebody in there. I never had time to feel fear—it was just one of those things you know you have to do."

He dashed to the second floor, and saw the bed "on fire with the ends collapsed" and the room blazing.

Whitener, a field agent for the Air Force Association, expected to find a man because of Mrs. Farmer's unusual first name. But when he poked his flashlight beam into the bathroom, there was Mrs. Farmer, in a nightgown, collapsed in a corner.

Choking, he ran downstairs for help, located another neighbor, Anthony Kubek, 30, of 2950 S. Columbia st., a teacher at Madison Junior High School. Firemen were now arriving. The two men reentered the apartment.

"Kubek stood on the stairs and held the flashlight while I tried to pull her out again. By this time the bathroom floor had caught fire," Whitener said.

He tried several times to pull Mrs. Farmer up, but her feet were "tangled" in a plumbing fixture. Whitener lost his grip, fell over Kubek, and tumbled down the flight of stairs.

Finally, both men, bending low to avoid heat "so bad we could barely stand it," dragged the woman out of the apartment. The whole rescue took about 10 or 15 minutes, Whitener thought.

Mrs. Farmer was taken to Arlington Hospital. Neighbors said her husband, an electrical engineer with the Rural Electrification Administration of the Agricultural Department, was suffering from shock but was not treated.

Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel said the fire began in the bed, possibly from a cigarette. No damage estimate was available, but the bedroom was gutted by flames and the whole second floor badly burned.

Neighbors said Mrs. Farmer, a native of Tunica, Miss., has lived in Arlington for the past six years with her husband. They have one daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Putney of Richmond, Va.

2-Alarm Fire Damages Arlington Warehouse

A two-alarm fire yesterday did "substantial damage" to electronic equipment stored in the third floor of Arlington County's new school warehouse—itself the recent center of hot controversy.

Firemen had no idea what touched off the blaze shortly before 6 a. m. Neither they nor officials of Air Industries, Inc., which leases the third floor of the building at 1426 N. Quincy st., could give any damage estimate.

James E. McKinley, 71, employed by a frozen food firm occupying the second floor of the warehouse, smelled smoke and notified the fire department when he arrived for work.

Four fire companies, including the distant Falls Church department, responded to the blaze and had it under control by 7:30 a. m. Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel said the fire was confined to one end of the third floor of the three-story, brick and cinder block structure.

Aircraft Industries, Inc., said its stock of aircraft electronic equipment, radio parts, and generators—largely war surplus—stored in the fire area was "badly damaged."

The warehouse was first in the news August 14 when the board bought it at auction for $288,000. Then, Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green refused to release funds for its purchase.

Subsequently, the board forced Green into Arlington Circuit Court, which on September 27 ordered him to release the funds. Green contended school bond funds earmarked for the warehouse could not be used for that purpose.

Tenants Held Bearing Quota Of School Cost

Arlington apartment dwellers carry their fair share of the school tax load, Dr. Ivan A. Booker, chairman of the county's Coordinating Council for School Bonds, said yesterday.

He based his statement on a study of 1950 census figures and on Arlington tax records.

Opponents of a proposed $7,450,000 school bond issue, to be decided at the polls November 7, have said the "cliff dwellers" won't have to bear their proportionate share of the bond cost.

Booker's figures showed that 32 percent of Arlington dwelling units are apartments; 55 percent are one-family houses. A total of 25 percent of Arlington's 6 to 17-year-old children live in the apartments, 66 percent live in the homes.

Thus, Booker said, homes furnish a greater percentage of school-age children than apartments.

A survey of taxes paid by apartment-building owners last year showed an average tax of $78 on each 6494 apartment units surveyed, Booker said.

"This means that each tenant contributes about one month's rent out of 12 to the total amount of taxes paid on his building," he declared. Applying the $78 figure to Arlington's total of 12,830 apartment units, he said apartment dwellers "apparently are bringing more than one million dolars a year in taxes" to Arlington, or about one-fourth of its total $4,471,771 yearly real estate tax.

3 Robbers Get Lengthy Jail Terms

Three robbers got lengthy prison terms from District Court judges yesterday.

Leonard R. Obery, 27, of 342 W st. nw., received a six-to-18-year sentence from Judge Edward A. Tamm. Obery was convicted of an armed holdup of a dry cleaning establishment at 2408 14th st. nw., where $15 was taken.

James W. Johnson, 24, of 425 12th st. se., got three to 10 years from Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut. Johnson was found guilty of robbing a man of $1 in a street yoking.

John Harrison, 20, of 641 Orleans pl. ne., received 28 months to eight years from Judge Schweinhaut for a street robbery netting the defendant $8.

Leslie Edwards, 50, of 1233 Union ct. sw., who was convicted of manslaughter in the knife-killing of Grafton W. Jones, sr., 40, of the same address, got 4 to 12 years prison.

Pfc. William F. Long, 32, of Fort Dix, N. J., was convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon for slugging John Mahougian, a storekeeper, at 3201 18th st. nw., with a blackjack. Long received an 18 month to 5 year term.

Three members of a car theft ring were also sentenced. They are John Edgar Smith, 26, no known address, who received 20 months to 5 years prison; Leo C. Condolon, 22, of Green Meadows, Md., 16 months to 4 years, and Charles Pastros, 22, of 7212 Flower ave., Takoma Park, Md., 1 to 3 years.

Irregularities Are Charged In Antivivisection Petition

BALTIMORE, Oct. 27 (AP).—Baltimore's bitter local fight over using dogs for medical research went merrily on today, with disclosures of irregularities in the petition which put the question on the ballot.

The Maryland Society for Medical Research, a lay group organized to help the doctors' campaign, announced it planned to take no legal action about the petitions.

There was some question whether the law provides any procedure for checking up on or invalidating the referendum petition now that the question is on the ballot for the November 7 general election.

The petition was filed September 20 by Col. Henry S. Barrett, president of the Maryland Anti-Vivisection Society, with the statement that it contained the signatures of 21,259.

This was more than double the 10,000 signatures needed to force the referendum.

The Evening Sun said today its partial check of the petitions shows wholesale irregularities, with the possibility of perjury and forgery being involved.

Three More Va. Convicts Recaptured

Two in Alexandria, Other in Norfolk; Two Still at Large After Three Escapes

Police in Alexandria and Norfolk captured three more escaped convicts yesterday.

One of two taken by Alexandria police was Walter W. Blair, 23. He said he planned the escape Tuesday of five men from a Culpeper, Va. road gang because he was serving time on a "bum rap."

The second escapee, recaptured in Alexandria, turned out to be a "surplus" convict, police said. He was arrested along the R. F. & P. Railroad tracks on a trespassing charge. Police identified him as Charles Mallory, 35, of Charlotte, N. C., an October 16 fugitive from a Giles County, Va. road gang. He was not among the five escaping at Culpeper.

The fourth of the five Culpeper escapees, Matthew W. Riddick, 26, was captured by Norfolk authorities. He has been charged with shooting a guard in the escape. The guard was not seriously hurt.

Two at Large

With these captives, the manhunt which has centered around northern Virginia and Greater Washington for three days, was focused on only two convicts still at large.

One is Robert L. Miller, 21, serving seven years with the Culpeper gang for grand larceny. He was reported seen in Georgetown Wednesday night, wearing a red checkered shirt, blue trousers, brown loafer shoes and armed with a .38-caliber pistol.

The other is James Zollo, 22, one of two prisoners who bolted the Virginia State Farm in Goochland County Wednesday.

Zollo's escape companion, Richard Poteet, 22, gave himself up to Fredericksburg police Wednesday night. Of the Culpeper fugitives Curtis B. Fultz, 22, was recaptured Wednesday in Culpeper County, and Ernest Walden, 25, was caught at Fort Myer by an Army captain and Military Police Thursday.

Virginia State police threw up road blocks last night on all highways out of Alexandria, after an anonymous telephone caller said he had been slugged and dumped from his car by a man at the Virginia end of Highway Bridge. The caller said the assailant identified himself as Robert L. Miller, shoved him and two companions out of the car, and drove off.

Capture Details

These events yesterday narrowed the field of fugitives to two:

Alexandria police received a phone call at about 8:55 a. m. from Blair, who said he was on his way to turn himself in.

Tracing the call, police rushed to the neighborhood. They found Blair in a phone booth at Timberman's Drug Store, King and Market sts.

He was talking, he said later, to police headquarters again, suggesting that they come and get him.

Private Robert Evans obliged, gun in hand, by rapping on the door of the phone booth.

"Don't shoot, don't shoot," Blair protested, cringing and holding the door closed. Evans ordered him out.

Planned Break

Questioned about the escape, Blair told police, "I planned it. I was down there on a bum rap." He was serving 16 years for robbery.

Federal authorities have issued warrants against four of the Culpeper escapees, charging that they obstructed the mails.

State police said the four, separated from Fultz, held up mail carrier Otis S. Kilby near Boston in Culpeper County. They took $30 from him, kidnaped him and took his car, police said.

Marine Family Picked as 'Top' Pedestrians

SAFETY DRIVE—Crossing a busy intersection yesterday in model safety fashion won for Marine Capt. Russell E. McCreery and family the first citation in the renewed "Pedestrian of the Week" program of the District Department of Vehicles and Traffic. Patrolman Isadore Fein (right) spotted the McCreerys of Quantico, Va., cautiously crossing F st. at 11th nw., observing the traffic light and holding the hands of their daughter, Catherine Anne, 3. Family received a gift certificate and a bouquet of roses

A special feature of the Sunday opening will be performances of "Aladdin," "Harlequinade," and scenes from "The High Toby" by the Pollock Toy Theater group at 2:30, 3:30 and 4:40 p. m. in the foyer of the Commerce Department auditorium.

The books at the fair are not for sale. There is no admission charge.

3 New Polio Cases Listed In D. C. Area

The number of poliomyelitis cases reported in the Washington area this year reached 400 yesterday, with two new cases listed in the District and one in Arlington.

The District cases brought the city's total for the year to 167, as against 97 at this time in 1949. The Health Department said they included a 4-year-old girl of the 800 block of 52d st., ne., admitted to Children's Hospital October 25; and a 4-year-old boy of the 700 block of Virginia ave. sw., admitted to Children's October 15.

Arlington health officials said the county's thirty-fourth victim was a 26-year-old woman of the 4800 block of N. 17th st., admitted to Georgetown University Hospital October 26.

Fairfax Question

School Head Favors Rule By Executive

A proposed changeover to the county executive form of government in Fairfax County, recommended last month by a special 21-member study commission, was indorsed yesterday by the county's school board chairman, F. W. Robinson.

Speaking in a "personal capacity," Robinson said he "concurred heartily" in the report of the study commission. The study group indorsed the county executive form and called for a ballot which would give the electorate three alternatives in their choice of the county's government.

In line with the commission's recommendations, voters will ballot November 7 in a referendum which gives them the choice of the existing "executive secretary" administration, the county executive form or the county manager form.

Robinson said he wanted the board of supervisors to govern the county "and not have vested in one man, for whom I do not vote, the power to govern as he thinks best." He said he was against any form of government "that has in it the possibility of disfranchising any citizen in any part of the county. . . . I think that the county manager form, as has been proposed, has not only the possibility but the probability that just that can and might be done."

Meanwhile, Lewis S. Travis, former secretary of the study commission, has asked the county board of supervisors to accept only as a "personal expression" a minority report filed by a commission member last week.

He referred to the report submitted to the supervisors by Martin T. Webb, favoring the county manager form and criticizing the commission's indorsement of the county executive system. Webb was the only member of the commission to oppose the proposal to recommend a joint ballot, offering voters the three choices.

Travis told the supervisors the commission was formally dissolved September 6 "by our own resolution." In view of this fact, he said, "I respectfully suggest that Mr. Webb's report be filed as his own personal expression, along with this communication, which is also a personal expression."

V. V. Baker Withdraws In Federation Election

Vernon V. Baker, an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner, last night announced withdrawal of his candidacy for second vice president of the Federation of Citizens Association. The election will be held November 4.

After learning of Dr. J. Ross Veal's nomination, Baker said he felt he could serve better on the public utility committee, of which he is the chairman. Veal now is the only candidate, but others may be nominated election night.

Welfare Board Urges Boost In Exemptions

The Board of Public Welfare is asking the District Commissioners for two changes in regulations governing its clients.

Gerard M. Shea, welfare director, said the board yesterday agreed to increase the exemptions for parents who are helping to pay for the support of children under care of the board. He said the extended exemptions from gross income were approved because of the increased cost of living. Payments to the board are figured on gross income minus exemption.

The Commissioners must approve the changes, which would allow an increase from $1200 to $1320 in the exemption for the first wage earner and an increase from $300 to $600 for each dependent in the home.

The board also wants to cut down the volume of documents which officials now must file with clients when they object to the size of their grant. The change would permit pertinent testimony, rather than a verbatim report, and a copy of findings and recommendations, rather than a complete file of the proceedings.

Shea said the board is trying to find a new location for the Municipal Lodging House, now at 468 C st. nw. He said the board has made no formal recommendation for the use either of the old Walker School or the old Jones School for this purpose.

Shea said the board is going to try to reorganize the program for girls now in effect at the Industrial Home School on Wisconsin ave. He said this would be aimed to work closer with the girls there, who are now contributing largely to the population of the Receiving Home for Children. She said population at the Receiving Home last week reached an all-tme high of 69, or three over capacity.

Fairfax Man Fined $250 for Driving Faster Than 70

A fine of $250 for driving his car at a speed allegedly 70 miles an hour, was imposed on Blair J. Ramsey, 34, Fairfax, Va., yesterday by Trial Magistrate James R. Miller in Bethesda Police Court. Ramsey noted an appeal.

Montgomery County Policemen Andrew Collins and Herbert West of the Bethesda substation testified they had given chase at 82 miles an hour and that Ramsey was pulling away from them when other county policemen, summoned by radio, halted the car.

Collins said that Ramsey told them he had received a message that his mother was dying in Silver Spring. They summoned an ambulance and a doctor and sent them to the house, only to find that the mother merely had a nervous condition, Collins said.

Art Exhibit Opens

Transit Co. Asks Slash Of $109,000 In Power Bill

PUC Is Urged To Decree Cut In Counterattack On Rise Proposal

Capital Transit Co. went on the offensive yesterday and asked the District Public Utilities Commission to order its electricity rates reduced by $109,000 a year.

The testimony by J. E. Heberle, vice president and comptroller of Capital Transit, was a counter-attack to the Potomac Electric Power Co. proposal to boost the transit company's rates by $557,000 a year. Pepco's request for a total revenue increase of $3,379,000 next year has been the subject of PUC hearings spread over two months and still not concluded.

Heberle sought to justify the decrease request by use of Pepco's current cost figures and elements of cost used in 1933 by the PUC staff to approve the rates of the Capital Transit-Pepco power contract. In the first half of 1950 Capital Transit paid an average of 9.91 mills per kilowatt hour, Heberle said. According to the Pepco and PUC figures, the charge should have been only 8.78 mills, he said. Thus, Capital Transit was overcharged in that period at the rate of $109,712 a year, Heberle said.

Double-Barrelled Case

Capital Transit has now presented a double-barrelled case. It says, on the one hand, that it deserves a cut in rates. But in case the PUC doesn't agree it has offered testimony to show that a rate increase should be accompanied by other changes in the power contract.

The contract was made in 1933 when Capital Transit was formed by the merger of the Capital Traction Co. and Pepco's parent, the Washington Electric and Railway Co., Heberle pointed out.

The contract gave Pepco free use of Capital Transit property having an estimated replacement value of $1,735,000. It also contained a fuel clause that provided for rate increases as Pepco's fuel costs went up, Heberle said. This has acted to boost Capital Transit power rates 67 percent above 1933 levels while the average of all Pepco rates is 36 percent below the 1933 figure.

Changes Discussed

The PUC has never changed Capital Transit rates, according to F. Gloyd Awalt, attorney for the transit company. If the Commission should increase rates now, he contended, it also should change other parts of the contract—such as requiring Pepco to pay rent on the property it uses.

In other testimony yesterday, the Federation of Businessmen's Associations supported an increase in Pepco rates, as did John A. Dore, a trader in stocks. Neither specified what the increase should be.

J. A. Kamerow, chairman of the federation's public utilities committee, said Pepco has given "excellent service" and should be given funds needed to carry on its expansion program. Dore, who said he owned about $120,000 worth of Pepco stock, urged an increase sufficient to attract investors.

The Veterans Cooperative Housing Association, which owns the 755-unit Naylor Gardens apartment development in Southeast Washington, suported Pepco's request for a decrease in rates to master-metered apartments. The change would shift such customers from commercial to the lower residential rates. Association spokesmen pointed out that apartments are residences and that a master meter for a whole building makes Pepco's metering and billing work easier.

Lavish Decorations Entangle 'Naval Lieutenant' With FBI

The youthful face and the lieutenant's bars didn't look right with the four rows of medals and theater ribbons spread across the Navy officer's chest.

So Harry M. Rouzer, jr., 23, of 3229 Buena Vista ter., se., yesterday faced United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence on a charge of illegally wearing a military uniform.

Ordered held in $500 bond for action of the grand jury, he explained:

"I only wanted to command the respect of others. I'm ashamed of what I've done."

Rouzer was arrested in a Southeast Washington tavern after a member of the Armed Services Police noticed the decorations below the young face, and became suspicious. When Rouzer failed to answer questions satisfactorily he was arrested and turned over to the FBI.

The prisoner told Lawrence that he once had been an enlisted man in the Navy, and that he started wearing the lieutenant's uniform and medals about two months ago. A resident of Washington for two years, he said he was a credit manager for the Clary Multiplier Co., Ring Building.

Ribbons and medals Rouzer displayed included: American-Asiatic-Pacific Ribbon with eight stars; American Theater Ribbon; American Defense Ribbon with one star; Japanese Occupation Ribbon; China Service Ribbon; European Theater Ribbon with two stars; Philippine Liberation Ribbon with two stars; Victory Medal; Navy Commendation with one star; Presidential Unit Citation with two stars; Purple Heart with two stars; Silver Star with one star, and the Good Conduct Medal.

Rouzer did not tell where he got the ribbons.

'Illegal' Evidence Admitted; Man Held in Marijuana Case

A District man was held for the Arlington grand jury yesterday charged with possession of marijuana, although the judge indicated that evidence against him was "illegally obtained."

Judge Hugh Reid ordered Francis Ace Stinnette, 26, of 732 Lamont st. nw., held after a hearing in Arlington County Court. Stinnette was freed in $1000 bond.

Questioned by Stinnette's attorney, Oren R. Lewis, police said the suspect was involved in a traffic accident October 15. When they made a routine check of his car, police said, they found a package of marijuana.

Lewis charged police made the search "without a search warrant" and that any evidence thus obtained was "not admissible" for trial.

Judge Reid said that according to Virginia law, "our Commonwealth is not deprived of evidence even if it is illegally obtained."

However, the judge ruled out a statement made by Stinnette during a period when police admit he was held 22 hours without a warrant for his arrest—from 4 p. m. October 15 to 2 p. m. the next day.

Judge Reid said the delay "apparently" was caused by the "vacillating attitude" of a Federal Narcotics Bureau agent who first arrested Stinnette for a Federal trial, then at the last minute decided to turn him over to the Virginia court. The agent made the switch, the judge said, because "this would not be a good case to bring before a Federal court with its more rigid rules."

Alexandria Criticized In River Pollution

Alexandria was accused in Fairfax Circuit Court yesterday of failure to comply with a 1946 Virginia State Water Board order calling for immediate abatement of Potomac River pollution by the city.

The water board's secretary, A. H. Paessler, testifying as a defense witness in Alexandria's annexation suit against Fairfax County, contrasted the city's noncompliance with the county's progress toward a sewage abatement program designed to satisfy the board's requirements.

While the county is completing plans for a 3-million-dollar sewage program in Sanitary District No. 1, including construction of a sewage treatment plant, Paessler noted, Alexandria has taken no steps to halt its discharge of raw sewage into the Potomac. As a result, he said, the water board is preparing to issue a "special order" to Alexandria to abate the nuisance.

He said no such special orders are planned for other Virginia communities which were affected by the original 1946 order.

Obvious purpose of his testimony was to establish that Fairfax County is better prepared than Alexandria to provide sewage disposal facilities to residents of the annexation zone.

The court recessed at noon yesterday until 10 a. m. Monday, when Fairfax expects to present its final witnesses. With no court scheduled for Tuesday, attorneys for both sides said they expected to conclude the hearing Wednesday.

$1600 Lost

N. Y. Visitor Held After Card Game

With a marked deck, cards can be akin to robbery, a Baltimore businessman complained to police here yesterday.

William H. Engleman, attending a convention, said he was "taken" for $1600 yesterday morning in what was supposed to be a friendly blackjack game.

He and some friends went to the Safecrackers Club, 5th and E sts. nw., where they met William T. Murphy, 27, a salesman from Plattsburg, N. Y., Engleman told police.

The Baltimorean and a companion accompanied Murphy to the Ambassador Hotel to visit a couple Murphy knew, police said. A blackjack game ensued. By 5 a. m. Englemann was $1600 poorer, he reported.

Murphy went to get a $1500 check cashed for Englemann, but failed to reappear.

Police, summoned to the hotel room, heard a telephone call in which a voice made a rendezvous in front of the Elks Club, 919 H st. nw. There they arrested Murphy. He was held in $3500 bond after arraignment for trial November 1, on a charge of larceny after trust.

Police declared Murphy had a marked deck of cards, which showed whether a 10 or face card was at the top of the deck—desirable information in blackjack.

D'Alesandro Unworried by Planning Bill

Baltimore's Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro apparently does not share the fears of a Maryland representative that the pending National Capital Park and Planning Commission bill endangers the city's autonomy.

Yesterday a spokesman for the mayor told The Washington Post. "A lot has been published recently about how the bill might turn Baltimore into a suburb of Washington and interfere with our affairs. I don't think the mayor is very concerned."

Early this week Rep. George H. Fallon (D., Md.), whose district includes several Baltimore wards, has asked Maryland's Attorney General Hall Hammond for an opinion on whether the Senate-approved measure "endangers inherent State's rights."

He is also fearful that the NCPPC, if the legislation clears the House and is enacted into law, will seek to interfere with municipal planning in Baltimore since the scope of the commission's authority, under the bill, extends to a 50-mile radius from Washington.

In contrast, the measure has the almost unanimous support of Congressmen representing nearby Maryland and Virginia.

NCPPC officials explain the new measure only clarifies powers the commission has had the past several years.

W. R. Moore, AP Man, Killed Aiding Officer

PYONGYANG, Korea, Oct. 27 (AP).—William R. Moore, missing Associated Press correspondent, was killed in action on the South Korean war front, while helping to save a wounded army lieutenant, a corporal who was captured in the same action said today.

The 40-year-old former Oklahoma City newspaperman, an Army major during World War II, failed to return from a voluntary mission which took him to the Chinju front last July 31. American forces then were making a desperate effort to stem the Red drive on Pusan, only 55 air miles to the east.

Corpl. Carl M. Anderson, of Sioux City, Iowa, said Moore had not been captured.

"I saw his body lying in a pool of water," he said. "There were nine of us and some South Koreans. Only one other man and I got out alive—and we were captured."

Anderson said he knew Moore and "there is no mistake about his identity."

Moore was a native of Nowata, Okla. He was a member of the Daily Oklahoman staff in Oklahoma City and joined the Associated Press staff in Denver in 1937.

He was a member of the armed forces in the Pacific during World War II from 1942 to 1946 and was discharged with the rank of major after occupation duty in Korea.

He rejoined the Associated Press in New York, and in April, 1948, was sent to Korea as a staff correspondent.

Union Orders Accuser of Thomas Tried

Factional battle for control of the 3000-member AFL Building Laborers Local 74 has taken a surprise turn, it was learned yesterday.

Henry Thomas, who a week ago was suspended as president of the local until he could refute charges of "Communist affiliations," has been reinstated—on a temporary basis. His chief accuser, Secretary-Treasurer Tom Sampler, has been ordered up for trial on a charge of disrupting the union.

The executive board of the union last week tried Thomas on charges initiated principally by Sampler, and named Vice President Hubert Ward "acting president" pending approval or rejection of the suspension by a membership meeting November 1.

Thomas held that his trial was illegal and unfair, and that the action of the executive board was invalid.

Wednesday night the executive board met and reversed itself to permit Thomas to retain his functions as president until the rank-and-file vote on November 1. At the same time the board accepted charges filed against Sampler, and scheduled his trial for November 6.

Meanwhile, Thomas called for a special meeting of the membership for 11:30 a.m. today at Laborer's Hall, 523 New Jersey ave. n.w. Sampler, in a leaflet, denounced the meeting as illegally called, and urged the rank-and-filers to stay away.

Thomas maintained yesterday that the meeting was an informal session to discuss progress in the setting up of a welfare fund with the city's contractors.

Evans Heads Copyright Conference

Prospects of establishing a new universal copyright convention appear promising, Luther H. Evans, Librarian of Congress, said yesterday, as international copyright experts concluded their first week's sessions here.

Evans was elected chairman of the conference, which is sponsored by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and is expected to recommend provisions for a world copyright setup.

The meeting agreed no new copyright agreement should be recommended that would have an adverse effect on the Berne Convention, to which many European countries are parties.

Judge Charles E. Wyzanski, jr., of the United States District Court, Boston, proposed that copyright protection in the international field be granted without requiring deposit of material, and that a simple international copyright symbol, with date of publication and the claimant's name, suffice for foreign works.

Experiment Joan

Television Model's Wardrobe Is a Tool of Her Trade

By Ann Lawrence

A MODEL'S WARDROBE is the tool of her trade.

Unless the picture for which she is posing is a high fashion one, she is often called upon to furnish her own clothes. So is a television actress.

Hence, she must learn to select her clothes wisely. She must know which silhouetes are most becoming to her, which are the most versatile. And because her income is unpredictable, she has to be even more budget-minded than her steady-salaried sister in an office.

To begin with, Joan learned three maxims which the well dressed woman must keep in mind, regardless of how much or how little she pays for her clothes:

1. Be silhouette minded. Remember your own silhouette and adapt fashion to it. Don't buy a garment just because it's the High Style this season.

2. You must learn to live in your clothes, to forget them, to make them a part of you, so that you yourself are noticed first, not the outfit you are wearing.

3. The fit of a dress should always be "easy," never too tight nor too loose.

WITH THESE PRINCIPLES in mind, we helped Joan select the outfits you see pictured on this page today. All are by Saint Maur and all hats are by Andree Castel.

Her first selection is a basic suit, of dark red wool. Its long jacket lines are slenderizing, make her seem taller. The pockets, you'll notice, are set just below the waistline, so that there is a gentle flare to the hipline.

Another good daytime basic is the second dress, of softest gray wool. It's the 1950 version of the shirtwaist dress, the "sweater dress." Equally as wearable and adaptable, its silhouette is easier, more feminine. The two side panels form an overskirt or apron which are graceful and flattering.

THE THIRD OUTFIT, with a billowing, thinner-than-knife pleated skirt, is another "fool your public" dress. For there's a multi-layered underskirt of tulle beneath the pleated skirt. And once removed, your dressy afternoon dress becomes a perfect basic black.

Because every actress needs one eye-stopper cocktail dress, the fourth, which combines black velvet and tissue-wool, was selected. The long bodice is a slenderizing note. The overskirt of velvet sweeps out gracefully to conceal too-rounded hips.

Each of the outfits takes easily to an accessory change, can be dressed up or down, as the occasion demands

DURING THE PAST seven days, Joan has learned hair care and styling that make the most of her naturally lovely hair. She has learned to play up her unusual eyes. She has found a way to prevent the recurrence of acne and a make-up that does not aggravate her sensitive skin.

And, as in every good Cinderella story, she has found a steady television job!

Sex Is Base of All Social Life, Church of England Group Says

LONDON, Oct. 29 (AP). — A Church of England Council decleared today sex "is the basic human fact and therefore the main ground of all social life."

"If the Church is to save the world from its own despair," the group said, "she will have to take more seriously than she has so far done her duty to help men and women understand and accept, in the deepest sense, their sexuality, and to see in it a clue to their very nature."

The comments were made in a booklet on sex, marriage and the family published by the Church of England Moral Welfare Council. The booklet is entitled "Moral Crisis, the Church in Action."

The report called for more extensive sex education on a moral and physical plane, rather than mere lectures on biological facts. It decried "half-truths and falsehoods" it said were found in movies, advertisements, novels and magazines. It summarized them as follows:

"'Sex is what you were made for. Sexual experience is the thing you can't do without. If you miss it, you miss the thing most worth having in life. And if you do not get all that you want in marriage you are free to seek it elsewhere'."

The council said persons seeking help in dealing with their moral problems "represent critical situations for the Church and the most searching test of her method of dealing with souls in this generation." It continued:

"If the church has something to say, and can say it simply and clearly, about the relations of men and women in love and in marriage and all the manifold problems of family life, she can count on a hearing from tens of thousands of people who will not trouble to listen to anything else she says."

At the same time, the social and industrial commission of the Church of England Assembly, governing body of the church, issued a report entitled "Gambling, an Ethical Discussion."

The main conclusion was that, although one might gamble "without necessarily committing sin, . . . it by no means follows that all forms of gambling are permissible or that all gamblers gamble innocently."

The report gave a clean bill of health to the Stock Exchange, but said "legislation might have beneficial effect" in confining betting on horse races to the track, to restrict solicitation for gambling, to to prohibit or restrict the size and to prohbt or restrct the sze and prizes of fooball pools.

Bookmaking is legal in Britain. Fooball betting pool prizes run into tens of thousands of pounds.

The Kids Really Go For Space Shows

By John Crosby

HOPALONG CASSIDY is holding his own for the time being but the odds are against him. The big thing for kiddies on television these days is outer space and the air in your living room during the period sacred to children, roughly 5 to 7 p. m., is likely to be filled with little cries of "Blast off!", "We just passed Venus, sir!" and "Decompress the fuel pumps!"

Crosby

The most pretentious of the outer space dramas is "Tom Corbett, Space Cadet" (CBS-TV-WTOP, 6:45 p. m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday). Tom Corbett is a cadet in the Space Academy from which ultimately he will graduate as a full-fledged Solar Guide. Function of the Solar Guides, a sort of interplantetary police force, is "to protect the liberty of the planets and safeguard universal peace." After the United Nations get things quieted down on this planet, the work has just begun.

Space Academy, apart from the cadets' picturesque speech and wierd clothes, is pretty much like West Point. That is, the upper classmen make it tough on the plebes, everyone snaps to attention at the slightest provocation, there is an excessive amount of saluting and sirring, and there is even—bless her little heart—a very pretty babe who is the daughter of the commandant. She teaches interplanetary acoustics or something like that and fends off advances from the bolder cadets.

IN CASE you hear the kiddies burst out with expressions like: "By the clouds of Venus," "By the rings of Saturn," "By the moons of Jupiter" and such like, you'll know where they got it. They got it from Tom Corbett, who talks that way. Space cadets don't blow their tops; they blow their jets. They don't kick up a rumpus; they blow up some meteor dust. In fact, if your child still is in the habit of saying such things as "Close yore big yap, ya lyin' lizzard. Yore plum loco," he's just plum old-fashioned.

Also if this thing catches on, you're likely to have to throw away all those Hopalong Cassidy duds and buy the little elves more up to date costumes. You want to know what your child will be wearing when he gets out of the Far West and into the twenty-fourth century? Among other things he'll have leather wristbands clear to his elbows and studded with brass nails and another leather contraption around his neck extending in a V to his stomach, also studded with nails. It'll be quite a trial for the furniture. Of course, you may have to throw the furniture away, too, and supplant it with dials, gadgets, cooling pumps, compressors and the other paraphrenalia that clutter up Space Academy.

Last I saw of Tom and his pals, incidentally, they were tearing off to Venus to quell some interplanetary skullduggery of one sort or another. A couple of Venetians, if that's the word, had made off with some of our top secret fighting equipment. That part of the security problem hasn't changed a bit.

THE OTHER space adventure is "Space Barton," a comic strip on NBC-TV—WNBW, at 5 p. m., Mondays through Fridays. "Space Barton" is one of three comic strips, the others being "Danny March, Private Eye" and "Kid Champion," a boxing comic, all compressed within 15 minutes which doesn't leave much time for outer space.

Flourine Found Dental Aid

The Public Health Service reported yesterday that tooth decay in children is "substantially" reduced when sodium fluoride is added to the public water supply.

The conclusions were published in the current edition of the service's weekly periodical, Public Health Reports.

Even as the publication was being distributed, State health officers, in annual meeting here, yesterday voted approval of artificial flouridation of public water supplies.

A spokesman for the District Health Department's Bureau of Public Engineering later said there have been no demands nor have any plans been made to "treat" the District's water supply with sodium fluoride.

He estimated that any such program, in which sodium fluoride is added to the water at the rate of one part per million, would cost about $200,000 a year.

As reported by Public Health Service, sodium fluoride was added to the Grand Rapids, Mich., water supply in 1945. At the same time, Muskegon, where the drinking water, climate and geography are similar, was chosen as a control city. A third city, Aurora, Ill., which has a natural fluoride concentration in its water supply, was included in the comparative studies.

Dental examinations of five, six and seven-year-old children in 1945 showed about the same degree of dental decay in the two Michigan cities, and 60 percent less in Aurora, the scientists reported.

Four years later, the five, six and seven-year-old children of Grand Rapids showed less than half the dental decay rate of the 1944-45 group, or about the same rate as the children in Aurora.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Small Town Boy Cleans Up in Washington

As Bob Casey says, "newspapermen meet such interesting people—and most of them are other newspapermen."

About a year ago, several battered old desks were moved out of our city room and replaced with new ones. World Editor Bill Nessly, who had spent more than a quarter of a century cramming his desk drawers full of Congressional Records, yellowed Presidential texts, pipe cleaners, assorted memos, rubber bands and correspondence, was forced to clean house.

He met the crisis with magnificent procrastination. Loading the whole works into a huge cardboard box, he murmured: "One of these days I'll have to go through this stuff and sort it out."

City Editor Ben Gilbert requisitioned two big cardboard boxes, and followed suit. And so it went. For a year, the boxes gathered dust.

But now that we're getting ready to move into our gleaming new building on L st., a gigantic clean-up campaign is in progress all down the line.

Gilbert tackled his accumulation of papers methodically. "I'll make two piles," he said. "One for the stuff I'm going to keep, and another for the things I can throw away."

After a half hour, during which time he had burrowed about two feet into the first box, the throw-away pile was two feet high and the "keep" pile was conspicuous by its absence. "If it's all going to be thrown away," he reasoned, "there's no sense in my rearranging it. Call the porter and tell him to throw out both boxes."

I retired to my cubbyhole to clean out my files. I've used them every working day for the past six years, and thought I knew every scrap of paper in them.

Luckily, however, I didn't use Gilbert's technique. I looked at the stuff before I threw it away and—so help me—found four United States Savings Bonds I didn't know I had.

As FCC Chairman Wayne Coy used to say: "It's not a bad idea to change desks occasionally, and start with a clean slate. It's much more fun to accumulate the stuff than to throw it out."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Upright piano, old but still good; free for the hauling, must go today." (Emerson 0588.)

"Loving, gentle female puppies, part-shepherd." (Warfield 3276.)

"Handsome, house-trained 5-year-old mixture bull and fox terrier, female. Needs fenced yard." (Shepherd 3749.)

"Housebroken young male dog, resembles dwarf police." (Trinidad 0342.)

"Part-Persian kittens, 10 weeks old." (Falls Church 8288 after 4 p. m.)

REMINDER

"Let's all have candy and cookies ready for Trick-or-Treat Night," suggests Mrs. Judith S. Harmel of 709 Longfellow st. nw.

"Children will be children, and we may as well take their pranks in fun. Rather than have soapy windows, let's permit the children to enjoy their big night with good clean fun. They'll outgrow their childish pranks soon enough, without our shooing them away."

Fair enough. But I hope the small fry will remember that fun is fun, and defacing or destroying property is something else again.

My advice to the young people is this: If somebody in the gang suggests vandalism, just think of how you'd feel if somebody deliberately busted up your bike.

There's nothing funny about being mean.

SUGGESTION BOX

Claude E. Dreyfuss of 3151 Adams Mill rd. nw. says that if George Keneipp really wants to be a hero and speed up traffic he ought to ask for a law prohibiting all left turns in congested areas. He contends that three right turns will accomplish the same maneuver for the motorist and do it faster—especially if we permit right turns (with due caution) on red lights.

BACKWARD BOY

The sight of the "TUO" on the glass door of the Hyattsville Building Association on 14th st. made me think it was a Latin word—until I realized it was just "OUT" in reverse.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I usually cross from Maryland ave. to Pennsylvania ave. via 8th st. se. each morning, and almost always have to turn into the center of the street to avoid striking people standing there.

They step out into the street to see if a streetcar is coming, and then don't step back. They just stand there, and run the risk of being hit.

The streetcar tracks are slippery in wet weather, and some day somebody is going to skid into that group.

Why do they stand there? I have not been able to figure out how standing in the street will make a car arrive any sooner.

D. T. Tichnell
7771 Emerson rd.
West Lanham Hills, Md.

Dear Mr. Tichnell:

After many years of research, I can assure you that the only way to make a streetcar show up promptly is to light a fresh cigar.

Bill.

Cut-Throat California Campaign

By Drew Pearson

Most interesting and vicious election campaign being waged in the West is between Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democrat, and Congressman Richard Nixon, Republican, for the Senate seat vacated by Senator Sheridan Downey of California.

Rep. Douglas

Mrs. Douglas, if victorious, would be the second woman in American history to gain a seat in the Senate on her own steam rather than through appointment following a husband's death (the other being the able GOP Senator from Maine—Margaret Chase Smith).

However, powerful forces, including the big ranchers, the utilities and oilmen—have combined to wage one of the most skillful and cut-throat campaigns against her I have ever witnessed. Certain reactionary Democrats have also joined in the hue and cry.

In another famous Senate campaign waged in Illinois between the late Senator J. Ham Lewis and Ruth Hanna McCormick of the Chicago Tribune family, Senator Lewis was always the height of courtesy. Never did he say an unkind word against his opponent. He "killed her with kindness"—and won.

But the California campaign is just the opposite. There is nothing too vicious for the opposition to say against Mrs. Douglas. And the unfairest of all accusations made against her is that she is pro-Communist.

Distort Vote Record

Taking advantage of the current wave of Communist hysteria, the Douglas opposition has prepared a "pink" sheet cleverly distorting some of the Congresswoman's votes into making it appear that she consistently voted with New York's radical Congressman Marcantonio.

This is one of the most skillful pieces of propaganda I have seen in the current election. It ignores the fact that Mrs. Douglas has put across some powerful and constructive legislation—such as the Douglas-McMahon bill — which created the Atomic Energy Commission, also the public housing bill for the passage of which Mrs. Douglas tirelessly buttonholed reluctant Congressmen.

The pink sheet also ignores the fact that the Congresswoman from California led the battle inside the Foreign Affairs Committee for aid to Korea, for military aid to Europe and for Marshall Plan aid—none of them exactly calculated to help the Communists.

Furthermore she battled for these measures at a time when her opponent, Congressman Nixon, was voting with Marcantonio against the first aid to Korea bill which lost by only one vote, and with Marcantonio to kill the Korean aid bill by recommitting it to committee. He also voted with Marcantonio to cut the 1949 military aid to western Europe in half—despite our vital battle against communism in that area.

Few of these things, however, are brought out in the hot and bitter senatorial campaign where the real backstage issues are the 160-acre limitation on reclamation which the big ranchers oppose and Mrs. Douglas wants to keep; also the distribution of public power which the big utilities want for themselves and Mrs. Douglas wants in Government hands.

These and tidelands oil, on which Mrs. Douglas has taken a pro-Government stand unpopular with the big oilmen, are the real issues in the California campaign—not communism.

However, lots of money and astute publicity have put these basic issues in the background and raised communism as the smoke screen. It is the same kind of fight waged against fair-minded Republican Senator Charles Tobey in New Hampshire, against liberal Senator Frank Graham in North Carolina and against progressive Senator Elbert Thomas in Utah.

Congressman Nixon has some good points in his favor, among them his persistency in keeping after Alger Hiss, but this brand of unfair politics is not going to help him with the fair-minded American electorate in the long run.

Gambling Lobby

Two Western States, California and Arizona, are voting in November on whether to legalize gambling. The gamblers will probably lose.

Meanwhile, the Kefauver Crime Committee has been tipped off that the underworld will send a private lobby to Washington to block the antislot machine bill after Congress reconvenes November 27.

This is the bill banning the shipment of slot machines to States which have outlawed them. The underworld didn't take the bill seriously until the Senate and House suddenly passed it. However, Nevada's GOP Senator George Malone filibustered for 11 hours to hold it up until after the congressional recess—long enough for the underworld to turn on the pressure.

There's something suspicious about Malone's filibuster. He made it in the name of Nevada and States' right, but the truth is, Nevada will probably benefit by the bill. For Nevada is the only State where slot machines are legal and the bill won't stop the shipment of slot machines to Nevada. It will merely shut off the supply to other States, which should bring more business to Nevada.

The bill also bolsters States' rights by helping to keep slot machines out of the States which have laws against them. The bill will not interfere with any State wishing to legalize slot machines.

These facts were reported to Malone by his research assistant, Carlos Toro, who recommended in favor of the bill. Yet Malone ignored his researcher and tried to talk Colorado's "Big Ed" Johnson, into delaying the bill. Johnson was chairman of the Senate committee which wrote it.

However, when Johnson refused, Malone snorted: "OK, brother, it's a long road."

Later Malone delivered his 11-hour filibuster, and served notice he would filibuster again if the anti-slot machine bill came up after Thanksgiving.

But the strange thing is, Malone didn't say a word against the bill throughout the lengthy hearings; these made front-page news and could not have been overlooked by him. Yet, not until different versions of the bill had already passed both the Senate and House, and the underworld suddenly got frantic, did Malone come out against it, holding up the Senate-House conference on the bill's final form.

Note—The underworld's cut in the slot-machine racket runs into billions of dollars. It also gets in on the distribution end, which would be hit the hardest by the anti-slot machine bill.

Note—Walter Young, lobbyist for O. D. Jennings & Co., largest slot-machine manufacturer, has paid several calls at Malone's office. The O. D. Jennings company, incidentally, is located in Illinois, not Nevada, but they figured Senator Malone could do business for them best.

"ZIP COATS! by Jackson...

SAYS JACKSON WEAVER, STAR OF THE HECHT CO. "SHOP BY TELEVISION*" SHOW

Don't Get Caught With Your Coat Off in dizzy Washington weather. The paper said fair and warmer, so I didn't drag my heavy winter coat along. Now look at me. This sort of thing can give a man a cold in the head!

Just What the Doctor Ordered! A double duty, all purpose, all wool Zip Coat at my favorite store. With a warm wool lining you can zip in when the wind howls, zip right out when the sun shines!

A Coat You Can Live In . . . All Year 'Round! Winter, spring, or fall, a Zip Coat fits any climate. Light, comfortable, looks smart, and every one is tailored with the skill that'll last through seasons of rough wear!

What a Selection! Sturdy wool coverts, crisp gabardines, famous Gleneagles, sharkskins, cheviots. In greys, blues, tans, olives, browns. There's a honey of a Zip Coat selection at The Hecht Co.

By Jackson, It's the Shining New Star of my wardrobe. Comfortable, good looking, and thrifty, too! One Zip Coat saves me the trouble and expense of buying two coats. Here's the wonderful garment that every Washington man should have!
